BRITISH HOLD NEW POSITIONS IN DESERT WAR

Bolstered Army Stands Firm in Face of Rommel Attack West of El Alamein.

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, EGYPT, July 13—Britain's army of the Nile, once again bolstered by Australians, stood firm in its newly won positions 10 miles west of El Alamein today after repulsing sharp German attacks but Marshal Rommel was reinforcing his forces by air and sea and preparing for a new thrust toward Alexandria.

Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck also was drawing new strength from his stores and reserves in Egypt.

With both sides thus hastily gathering power for new tests, present activity in the desert was viewed by British military circles as probing for favorable ground for future operations.

The newly won British positions at Tel El Eisa, west of El Alamein, were believed so vital to Rommel's offensive plans that the British expected he would continue to attempt to recapture them before he begins a new bid for a complete Egyptian victory.

The British communique today said they had repulsed all German counterattacks on the positions so far.

First U. S. Bomber Lost

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, July 12—(Delayed)—The United States air corps has suffered its first loss of a Liberator (Consolidated bomber) in battle in the Middle East arena.

The giant planes had been bombing axis targets for several weeks with immunity when a formation of the bombers enroute to attack Mediterranean shipping was intercepted by Messerschmitt fighters.

Two of the Messerschmitts were shot down—but one Liberator did not return.

At the same time British shock troops and artillery were reported harassing the enemy on the southern end of the front just above the Qattara depression while in the center axis forces were kept on the defensive by continued shelling.

Heavy dust storms interfered with aerial operations yesterday, but allied fighters made protective sweeps over the lines and lighter bombers strafed enemy positions, a communique said.

Today's communique gave little detail of the fighting west of El Alamein, merely reporting:

"In the northern sector yesterday, our troops drove off an attack by the enemy on the northwestern area of positions occupied during our recent advance."

It appeared, however, that the hard-bitten Australian troops, whose arrival in the battle zone has given the British eighth army a fresh lift, were tightening their group on newly-won positions along the coast near Tel El Eisa.

Capture of the positions, announced by British headquarters yesterday was accomplished in sharp fighting during which 2,000 axis troops were taken prisoner and 18 enemy tanks were knocked out of action. Guns and trucks also were reported captured.

(The British radio, quoting its correspondents at the front, said a further advance was made by British forces yesterday and that 100 more prisoners were taken.)

The operations carried out by the Australians were the chief development announced over the week-end and represented an advance of 10 miles on Marshal Erwin Rommel's left flank since dawn Friday, when the battle of Egypt was renewed after a 10-day lull.

Some fighting was reported on the central front, where British mobile columns and artillery dealt with enemy tank forays, but there was little activity on the southern flank.

Dispatches from the front indicated infantry played a major part in the fighting along the coast, with mechanized forces in a supporting role. The Australians were said to have carved out their gains at bayonet point.

Arrest of Alleged Associates of Nazi Saboteurs Announced

List Names of 14 Who Were "Contacts" for German Agents.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 13 — The arrest of 14 alleged associates of the eight Nazis standing trial for their lives before a military commission was announced today by Attorney General Biddle.

Biddle said that the group included six women and that the 14 persons were the "immediate contacts" of the German agents who landed on Long Island and Florida coasts from German submarines last month.

At the same time, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the federal bureau of investigation said that the arrests had been made in Chicago and New York during the last three weeks and that the investigation of their activities and of other possible contacts still was underway.

Those announced as in custody were:

Helmut Leiner, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y.; Anthony Cramer, New York; Miss Hedwig Engemann, New York; Hermann Heinrich Faje, Astoria, Long Island; Mrs. Maria Kerling, New York; Ernest Herman Kerkhof, New York; Hans Max Haupt and Mrs. Haupt, Chicago; Harry Jaques and his wife, Emma, Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilhelm Froehling, Chicago.

"The individuals apprehended," Hoover said, "are known to have given shelter to the saboteurs after their arrival in New York and Chicago and to have furnished them assistance which would have aided the foreign agents in their sabotage activities in the United States. One of the individuals assisted by purchasing an automobile for the use of one the (Nazi) agents in transporting the explosives and other material recovered by FBI agents on the Atlantic shore on Long Island and Florida."

Hoover added that the accomplices helped also by concealing part of the $175,000 recovered by the FBI which the [illegible]

One of the women, Maria Kerling, was identified as the wife of Edward John Kerling, on trial as the leader of the four Nazis who landed near Jacksonville June 17. Mr. and Mrs. Haupt were said to be the parents of another defendant in the military trial, Herbert Haupt, who was in Kerling's group.

Meanwhile the military trial of the eight Nazi saboteurs who landed from U-boats was resumed on schedule today for its fifth session with a member of the defense counsel reporting that he had no idea how long it would continue. Some persons close to the prosecution counsel expressed the view that the secret hearing might be concluded in the next three or four days.

There was no evidence from outside the walled up corridor on the fifth floor of the justice department building as to who might be appearing before the commission of seven generals, although it was known that a federal agent resumed the stand first for conclusion of cross examination begun during the protracted session Saturday.

The only persons seen in the hall were members of the prosecution and defense staffs, heavily laden as usual with brief cases, folders and bundles of documents. Some messengers from the FBI wheeled in a load of papers on a small cart.

MARION RUBBER DRIVE 40 TONS OVER TOP

More Than 190 Tons Gathered in 25-Day Campaign.

Marion county's 25-day scrap rubber drive which ended midnight Friday netted 380,895 pounds, or about 40½ tons over the 150-ton goal originally set as Marion county's quota.

George Long of the Standard Oil Co., official tabulator for the local drive, announced final drive figures today after contacting all collection agencies over the week-end.

The drive passed the 150-ton mark early last week, but collection of 60,967 pounds of scrap in the final day sent the campaign beyond all expectations of drive officials. Of the 60,967 pounds collected Friday, only 462 pounds were donated. The remaining 60,505 pounds were purchased by service station operators and bulk

TAX BILL GETS SAFEGUARDS

House Committee Seeks To Prevent Modifications During Debate.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 13 — The house ways and means committee decided today to surround its new $6,250,000,000 tax bill with enough safeguards to prevent any modification when presented to the house for debate and passage this week.

The committee agreed to ask the rules committee to approve procedure which would preclude all amendments except those minor revisions which might be drafted by the committee itself.

Thus, beginning Thursday, the greatest revenue bill in the nation's history could be discussed by the entire membership but not modified. This procedure has been followed in floor debate on revenue measures for many years to avoid weeks or months of argument.

Bearing the approval of all but five of the 25 committeemen, the bill fell $2,450,000,000 short of Secretary Morgenthau's $8,700,000,000 tax goal. It would impose taxes of about $2,485,400,000 on corporations and personal income taxes totaling $2,958,000,000.

It would boost total federal revenues to about $24,000,000,000. The war production board reported Saturday that war spending in June alone was $4,123,000,000, or at a rate more than twice anticipated total revenue under the new bill.

For individuals the committee decided to increase the normal tax from 4 to 6 per cent and to raise the present 6 to 77 per cent graduated surtax rates to 13 to 82 per cent. It adopted a collection at the source provision by which 5 per cent of an individual's income would be deducted from paychecks and pay envelopes beginning in January.

The committee also adopted a new corporation tax program which would raise the present combined normal and surtax from 31 to 45 per cent and would substitute a flat 87½ per cent excess profits tax rate for the present 35 to 60 per cent graduated scale. Having backed down from a once-approved 94 per cent rate, the members also eliminated a proposal for post-war refunds for corporations which paid excess profits taxes.

DEATH CLAIMS D.R. CRISSINGER AT HOME HERE

Marion Attorney and Banker Held High U. S. Offices Under Harding.

Death claimed Daniel R. Crissinger, 81, comptroller of the currency and governor of the federal reserve board under President Warren G. Harding, last night at 10:10 in his home at 145 Sharpless court.

His death ended a long career as a lawyer, banker and federal official.

Mr. Crissinger returned to Marion from Washington in 1934 and until his health failed about three years ago, he followed the profession of law. He had been bedfast virtually all of the last three years.

Private funeral service will be conducted Tuesday at 5 p. m. in the Timson-Allen funeral home in Caledonia. Rev. R. H. Gleason of the Universalist church in Caledonia will officiate. Burial will be made on the family lot in Marion cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home until service time.

First Public Office

Mr. Crissinger began his public life when he was elected prosecuting attorney of Marion county on the Democratic ticket in 1888. He was reelected in 1891 and when his second term ended he was elected city solicitor on the Democratic ticket serving in this capacity for three terms of two years each.

It was during his period of office as solicitor that Marion was going through a transition from village to small city and being the city's legal advisor was an exhausting task. It was about this time that the waterworks came to Marion, the storm and trunk line sewers were constructed, and Center and Main streets paved over important sections. In connection with each of these projects the solicitor played a busy part.

In 1904 Mr. Crissinger won the Democratic nomination for congressman from the Eighth district but was defeated in the Theodore Roosevelt landslide of that year. He was again unsuccessful in trying for the same position in 1906.

He had no part in governmental affairs except for several years during which he served as a state bar examiner, from the early 1900's until Harding became president. Incidentally, Mr. Crissinger and the late Fred W. Warner are believed to have been the only Marion attorneys to serve as state bar examiners in recent years.

Enters Nation's Service

The appointment of Mr. Crissinger as comptroller of the currency by President Harding on March 10, 1921, came as the climax to Mr. Crissinger's wide experience as a banker and lawyer. From his position as president of the National City Bank & Trust Co. Mr. Crissinger was elevated to what is generally regarded as one of the highest financial posts in the government service.

He continued to serve as comptroller until May 1, 1923, when he was appointed governor of the federal reserve board by President Harding. As comptroller he had been a member of the board. As governor he held the second highest position in the treasury department, second only to the secretary of the treasury. He continued in this capacity until he resigned on Sept. 15, 1927, after serving under both President Harding and President Coolidge.

Those familiar with his work in the treasury department recall that Mr. Crissinger was ranked high among the various men who have served as comptrollers. The

RETAIL SALES CLASS STUDIED

Part Work, Part Study Course May Be Set Up for Group of Seniors.

Harding high school seniors interested in the new cooperative course in retail selling which will be introduced next fall, providing there is an initial class of 25, should register Tuesday at the high school office, Principal O. H. P. Snyder announced today.

Only one day will be set aside for the registration. Hours will be from 9 a. m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 5 p. m.

Registration cannot guarantee admission to the course, but the class membership will be determined from the registration list, Mr. Snyder said.

Requested by Merchants

The course, approved recently by the board of education in response to a request made by the retail board of managers of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, will be made possible by the cooperation of local merchants, the board of education and the state and federal governments, under the George-Dean act of July 1, 1937.

Under the Dean act the courses are commonly known as distributive education courses. Students are trained in types of work wherein a product or service is sold to a consumer.

The pattern follows the Smith-Hughes courses sponsored for 22 years by the federal government in home making, agriculture and industrial vocations. Harding High school has had a Smith-Hughes vocational course for a period of 20 years.

Both Work and Study

As outlined today by Mr. Snyder, a Harding student enrolling as a senior this year in the distributive education course will spend a part of the school day working for a Marion merchant for compensation, in the selling of some type of goods or services. The student's daily program would include the following:

1. About three hours' work experience in selling for compensation. (Not less than 15 hours per week must be spent in work experience.)

2. A double period of instruction in retail selling relating directly to the student's work experience.

3. The two other senior subjects required for graduation will be American government and English.

FRONT LINES UNBROKEN AS FORCES RETIRE

Nazis Drive Within 200 Miles of Volga in Dash Toward Caspian Sea.

By The Associated Press

The Russian army, giving ground but keeping its front unbroken, was hammered back today into the big bend of the Don river where the Germans' deepest drive into Soviet soil carried the Nazis within 200 miles of the Volga in a sweep toward the Caspian sea that would cut off the Caucasus.

The Germans declared that the Russians were being pursued on a "broad front" in the south but turned to the central sector northwest of Moscow for a specific victory announcement — that 30,000 Red soldiers had been taken captive in a 11-day battle southwest of Rzhev.

Strong Soviet resistance north and northwest of Voronezh, the left flank of the German thrust in the Don basin, was indicated in the assertion that a Red army "division attack" in those directions had been repulsed with 111 Russian tanks shot up.

Battle Along Don

This attack, it was indicated, was against German bridgeheads thrown across the Don.

Strong German air formations were reported joining in the pursuit in the southern sector, where they were said to have destroyed several Don and Donets river crossings which would be of value to the Russians in maneuvering their forces.

The Rzhev battle began July 2, the high command said in a special communique.

(Rzhev is 135 miles northwest of Moscow.)

The gravest threat to the hard-strained Russian southern front developed at Boguchar, 50 miles beyond Rossosh and only 200 miles from Stalingrad on the Volga river.

To the north the Russians reported still holding Voronezh under intensive assault, but to the southwest they were forced to give up Lisichansk and drop back to the east bank of the Donets river against a third German spearhead being driven in south of Izyum between Kharkov and Rostov, front door to the Caucasus.

"Intense fighting continues at the approaches to Voronezh, during which the enemy is suffering enormous losses," a Soviet communique declared.

"In the neighborhood of Boguchar," it said, "our troops are waging a heavy defensive engagement against advancing enemy forces . . . having evacuated Lisichansk and occupied new positions, our troops are waging a battle against enemy tanks and infantry."

50 Miles from Volga

Boguchar, where the Don veers sharply east to within 50 miles of the broad Volga, is 435 miles from

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Uncle Sam takes good care of his soldiers. Included in the issue to each man is two woolen blankets. Specifications say these blankets must be olive drab, must contain at least 65 percent virgin wool, the rest in worked-over wool. They cost $6.25 each or $12.50 for the pair for each man.

So a $25 War Bond for which you pay only $18.75 will buy almost three of these wool blankets for American soldiers. There are some cotton blankets which are used in tropical climes which cost $2 but all our boys need these wool blankets. You can buy them with your purchase of War Bonds. Invest at least ten percent of your pay every pay day. Get War Bonds from your Bank, Postoffice or other issuing agency. U. S. Treasury Department

600 ATTEND HARDING HIGH BAND CONCERT

Free Program Presented at Chautauqua Pavilion.

Approximately 600 persons attended the second free concert presented by Harding High school band Sunday afternoon at the Chautauqua pavilion. The program, given under the direction of Homer E. Huffman, director of instrumental music, was a varied one. Included were several marches, two named numbers, a popular selection, a waltz and "The Star Spangled Banner," which opened the program.

Playing with the band were a number of incoming sophomores, candidates for the group for the coming three years, and this year's graduates, for whom it was probably the last appearance with the band. Practices have been held once a week since school was dismissed for summer vacation and will continue for several weeks yet, Mr. Huffman stated. The next practice will be at 8 p. m. tonight in Central Junior High school.

Two of the Clowns Coming To Marion Friday with Circus

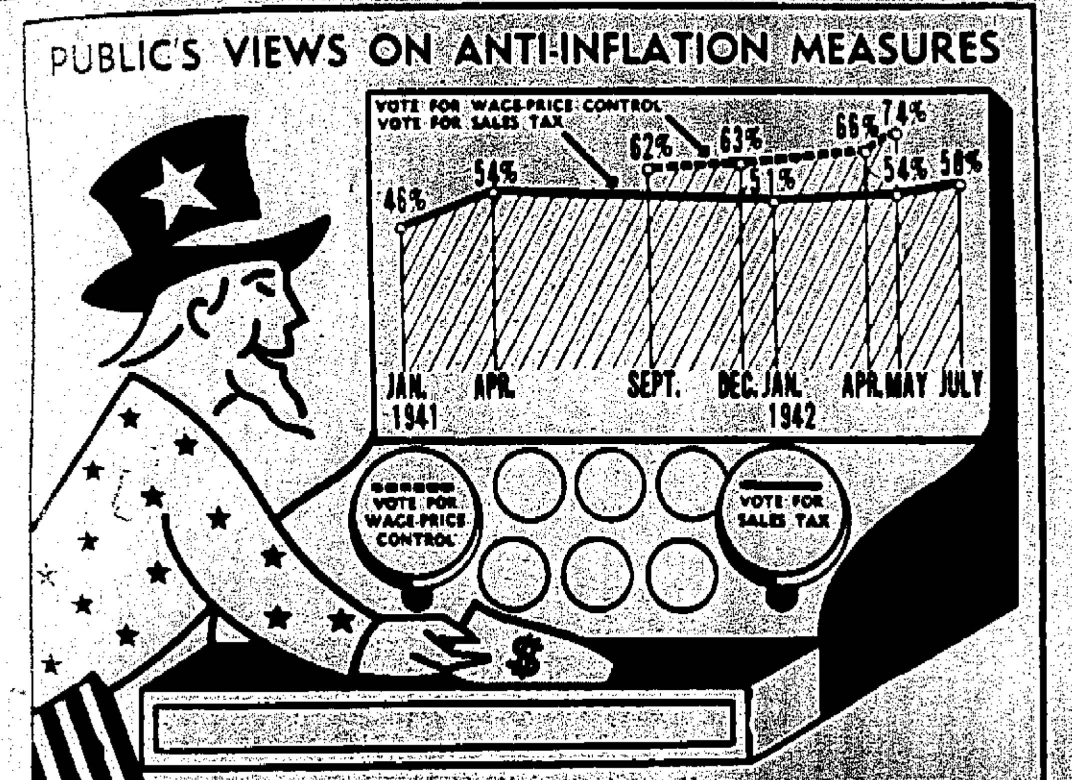

Pictured is Lawrence Cross and Albert White of the "Laugh Department" of Wallace Brothers Circus which comes to Marion on Friday, July 17.

Clowns have always been the backbone of the circus and this year Wallace Brothers Circus, which comes to Marion for two performances on July 17, will introduce a large contingent of buffoons. These grim-faced funsters who have made it their business to study the art of making people laugh are acclaimed masters of clowning, which is really serious work.

The entire life of a clown is spent planning ways and means of making huge audiences laugh and in these trying days it is a hard proposition. In their preparation of devising mirthful antics these funsters sometimes try to burlesque topics of the day or head line situations, but never to attempt lampooning anything that would cause anyone pain or sorrow.

Two performances are scheduled at 2 and 8 p. m., rain or shine, in which hundreds upon hundreds of arenic features will be presented including Miss Erma Ward, the titan haired "champion of the air", the Arley Troupe, the Riding Nickalonians, the Enos, the Marvellos, the Morello-Savilla Troupes and many other aerialists, equilibrists and acrobats.

The main entrance will open precisely one hour earlier to enable everyone sufficient time to inspect the menageries and to enjoy the band concert.

If the majority of plain Americans had charge of fighting inflation, they would institute four main economic programs — broader income tax base, a national sales tax, control of wages as well as prices, and deduction of ten per cent of all pay envelopes to purchase defense bonds and stamps. The trend of sentiment on two of these measures—sales tax and wage-price control—is shown above as measured by the Gallup Poll.

Public Ready To Accept More Drastic Measures for Control of Inflation

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 13—In the battle against inflation, the people are ahead of the government.

They want a program which, in many respects is far more drastic, far more sweeping than anything now being done. If the majority of plain Americans, free from the influence of pressure groups had charge of fighting inflation, they would put into effect these four things, Institute polls show:

1. They would lower income tax exemptions and broaden the tax base. Roughly half of American families pay no income tax. The typical citizen would require these families to pay at least something.

2. The majority of Americans would enact a Federal sales tax of two or three per cent on everything that people buy.

3. In return for price fixing on all products, including farm prices, they would put into effect a national wage fixing program, similar to that now operating in Canada.

4. They would institute a nation-wide program for deduction of a flat ten percent from all pay envelops to buy defense bonds and stamps.

The ideas and attitudes of the public constitute an important factor in the battle against inflation because the outcome of such a battle depends on the spirit of willingness and cooperation of the people.

When the proposed $1-a-day wage increase in the "little steel" companies went before the War Labor Board last week, observers called it a crucial test of the President's anti-inflation program.

Although few average citizens have first-hand knowledge of the particular situation in little steel or of CIO arguments favoring the wage increase, the public's attitude on the general principle of the $1-a-day raise is one of opposition.

The Institute found the public voting about 4 to 1 against the increase—further evidence of the desire to hold wage rates frozen for the duration of the war.

Wage-Price Control

Wage and price control is something which the public favored many months before the government took a step in that direction. Two months prior to Pearl Harbor 62 per cent of all voters questioned in a survey favored Federal control of wages and prices, including farm prices. By May of this year the vote had jumped to 74 per cent.

Farm leaders and labor leaders alike were surprised to find from the survey that the rank and file of labor and of American farmers were in favor of the combined wage and price fixing program.

As a counterpart to wage-price freezing, the American public has likewise voted for strict government control and regulation of business and manufacturing profits during wartime.

Using the Tax Club

The public has always favored greater use of taxation to pay for the war and to siphon off excess purchasing power which generates inflation.

In fact, it is doubtful that even the experts in the tax field have become aware of the extent to which people of all income levels, high and low, are willing to bear added tax burdens provided they feel that everyone is being asked to make some sacrifice.

The Institute recently completed a survey in which the public was asked what income tax they would levy on a family of four earning various amounts from $1,000 a year up.

When the results are compared with the sums proposed, in the present tax bill before congress, it is clear that the public would go much farther than the government in broadening the income tax base.

Typical Family Earning:	Tax Proposed by Public	Tax Proposed by Congress
$1,000	$7	None
1,500	24	None
2,000	54	None
3,000	201	$162
5,000	470	540
10,000	1,640	1,800
50,000	13,700	24,296
100,000	33,700	62,416

One interesting fact uncovered by this survey is that the public believes families in the income levels above $5,000 pay less than they are actually required to pay. Not knowing what is now paid, they set tax rates considerably lower than congress does for the upper income brackets.

The tax rates in the present bill before congress, while they are in most respects the highest in history, seem mild when compared to taxes in Canada.

The proposed 1942 tax for the typical family of four in Canada earning $5,000 a year is $1,062, excluding a post-war refund, or about double what congress proposes here. The typical Canadian family earning $10,000 will be asked to pay in actual income taxes $3,346.

Sales Tax Sentiment Grows

A sizable share of American spending power is found in the income brackets under $2,000 a year—brackets now exempt from federal income taxes. In Britain, a sales tax has been added to already high income taxes as a means of draining off some of the purchasing power in these lower brackets.

In the United States, popular sentiment for a federal sales levy has grown in recent weeks. A substantial majority favor a two per cent tax, and a slight majority say they would be willing to accept a three per cent tax.

The trend of national sentiment on a two per cent sales tax is shown below:

Two Per Cent Sales Tax	Favor	Oppose
Jan., 1941	46%	54%
Apr.	54	46
Jan., 1942	51	49
May	54	46
Today	58	42

This Week in the Sky

(Prepared especially for this page by the Hayden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.)

VENUS, the brightest planet, shines as a conspicuous morning star. On the 15th of July it will have a magnitude of 3.4 and will appear about 23 degrees above the eastern horizon at sunrise.

Mars is rapidly leaving the sky picture as it approaches the sun.

Jupiter is too close to the sun for observation, but Saturn will become a conspicuous object in the eastern sky before sunrise.

The moon was new at 8:03 A. M. (E.W.T.) on Monday, the 13th. It will be in conjunction with the sun at 7:46 P. M. (E.W.T.) on Wednesday, July 15th.

Due to the fact that the moon will be missing in the later hours, this week is an excellent time to study the constellations.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

CHAPTER 22
Hestor Talks

"HIS name was on that slip of paper," Murdock said. "And so was Raeburn's to the tune of twenty-five thousand. It looks to me as if Clarke was trying to clean up all around."

He finished his drink and leaned forward, accenting his words. "By the way, who exactly is this Raeburn?"

He saw her blink, the automatic recoil of her eyes. He smiled.

"You know him, of course. I was looking right at you when he walked in here this morning."

"Oh," Hestor said and her voice was like a sigh.

"You recognized him; that's why you dropped the glass."

"All right," Hestor said, her pout good-natured. "You win. I'll tell you about it, but I can't talk clear across the room." She indicated a spot on the divan. "We might have a drink first, though," she said, and waited until he returned with fresh ones.

"Now?" she said, her eyes mocking him over her glass.

"Now."

"Well"—she sighed—"Don Raeburn is my stepson."

Murdock turned so quickly that some of his drink spilled on his hand.

"Your what?"

"But he is," Hestor said calmly.

Murdock stared at her. He took a drink. Finally he leaned back. "All right," he said wearily. "You tell it."

"I'm not sure that I want to."

"The police have been hammering away at him all day. They'll get the story eventually and then I'll get it from them."

"You would," said Hestor. "Well, it's like this. His real name is Don Losado, Miguel's only son."

"Then why—"

"Because he hated me. Raeburn was his mother's name and he took it when his father re-married. Whether he hated me personally or whether it was just the idea of his father marrying a nightclub entertainer, I don't know. I've never seen such a proud and arrogant man. The family is very old, and smug and patriotic and apparently the son had no intention of accepting me. At first I was furious, and then I thought perhaps he'd get over it. But he never did. I simply didn't exist for him."

Suspicion

As she went on, Murdock's mind began to revolve around certain possibilities that had not before occurred to him. In spite of himself he began to wonder if Hestor was quite all that she seemed, if behind her apparent frankness there was something that might connect her with the murder of Perry Clarke.

"—and now, of course," she was saying, "he hates me more than ever because I have something he wants."

"Why was Raeburn's name on that list?"

"I don't know," she said.

"And why did Raeburn follow you here?"

"That I know."

"He thought you had too big a slice of his father's estate and was trying to—"

"On the contrary," Hestor said. "I inherited only a very small portion. Miguel was very wealthy but that wealth was in the country itself. He had three plantations—I don't know how many thousands of acres—and the town place. There were some foreign investments — European mostly and of no great value now—and not much cash. What there was I got; that and the town place."

She asked for a cigarette and waited for a light.

"How much does it amount to?" Murdock asked. "Or is it none of my business?"

"It's none of your business," Hestor said, "but I'll tell you. A quarter of a million in cash and the townestate should bring about the same amount."

"Umm," Murdock said. "It must be quite a place."

"It is. Really, Kent, you've never seen anything like it. It's about four miles out on a high plateau that looks over town and harbor. The house is stone, low and rambling, and there's a pool and gardens and a tennis court. I don't know how many acres there are, but enough for a polo field—and there are trails along the slopes so one can ride. You should sit out on the veranda at night with the lights of the city shining below you and the moon spreading its reflection out across the sea."

She sighed and stirred beside him, as though to break the spell. Then she had turned and was smiling, her voice once more matter of fact.

"It was heavenly, Kent. Yet—I couldn't stand it there alone. I had to leave, and I knew I'd never be back."

"You're selling it, then?"

"Yes. To a syndicate. For a new club, I believe. They were already getting members when I left. And that's why Don Raeburn hates me. He wanted to buy it."

The Hundred Thousand

Murdock waited. When there was nothing more he said: "Don't you want to sell to him? You being spiteful."

"Oh, no. I know why he wants it. It's been in the family for ages and he can't bear the thought of its being turned into a club. The trouble is he can't pay for it."

"You said he was rich."

"He is—or will be—when the inheritances are paid over the first of the month, but there is no cash, don't you see? I can get two hundred and fifty thousand for the estate the first of the month. Cash. He has made the same offer—but with only twenty-five thousand down. I can't do it, Kent."

She paused again, and when he saw the new line of her mouth he knew she meant what she said.

"With all that property," Murdock said thoughtfully, "it's funny he can't raise that amount through the banks."

"That's what I told him in Caragua. Now I suppose he's come here with the idea that he can pester me into accepting his offer. Either that—or—why, yes." Her eyes widened. "Maybe he has found some way of raising the money here, in this country."

"Would you sell to him if he did?"

"But certainly. Not because of him, though; because of Miguel."

"And if not, the sale goes through the first of the month—through John Nason's office?"

"Yes." She leaned towards him and her hand found his. "And now, please, can't we talk about something else? See what you can get on the radio."

Her touch was warm. He gave her hand a quick squeeze and dropped it.

"All right. But tell me about one thing first?"

"What?"

"Perry Clarke and that hundred thousand you gave him."

She smiled. "All right, then, I will. I did because he once did something for me and if it hadn't been for him I might still be singing in nightclubs. I'm not going into detail about our marriage. I thought we had been unhappy—you and I—but it was nothing like it was with Perry. You were never mean or deliberately nasty and you stayed sober, but Perry. . ."

OHIOANS AMONG INTERNEES

WASHINGTON, July 13—Four Ohioans are among 297 American civilians captured by the Japanese on Wake Island and interned at Shanghai, the war department announced today.

Know an Enemy When You See One?

Wide World Features

The landing of German submarine-borne saboteurs on the east coast, along with instances of German aviators' escape into the United States from Canadian prison camps puts a question to civilians. Would you know an enemy if you saw one?

Here's what a couple of them look like. At the left, a German aviator; at the right, a German naval officer. Their garb would stand out among uniformed American soldiers or sailors, but the wearer might stroll down a street without attracting much attention.

There's no elaborate display of the swastika on most German uniforms. It may be found usually on a cap adornment or service insignia.

RECORD JULY CROPS SEEN IN FORECAST

Agriculture Dept. Reports Best Conditions in Years.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 13—The agriculture department's July crop forecast indicated today that the best growing conditions in years for the country as a whole would bring "banner" farm production in 1942 with record yields expected in many crops vital to the war effort.

New yield marks are expected for sugar beets and soy beans, while large supplies of bread and feed grains appear in the making.

If prospects based on July 1 conditions are borne out at harvest time, this year's acreage of all types of crops will be the largest in 10 years and total production will be three per cent greater than last year and 14 per cent above the 1923-32 average—the period prior to the AAA crop control programs.

Wheat production was estimated at 904,288,000 bushels, with Ohio contributing 39,450,000 bushels from 1,740,000 acres averaging 22.5 bushels to the acre. National production last year was 945,637,000 bushels.

The national corn crop forecast was 2,627,823,000 bushels, with Ohio producing 162,475,000 bushels on 3,500,000 acres with an indicated average yield of 48.5 bushel to the acre.

The department estimated a record planting of 14,241,000 acres of soybeans throughout the country and 1,403,000 in Ohio as compared with 923,000 last year. The national acreage is 42 per cent greater than last year.

A new high was foreseen in sugar beet production by the federal crop reporting board, a yield of 12,457,000 tons being indicated, compared with the previous record high of 12,292,000 tons in 1940. Ohio's production was expected to be 528,000 short tons.

Ohio was expected to produce 52,700,000 bushels of oats on 1,240,000 acres.

Tobacco production throughout the nation was expected to increase eight per cent over the 1941 harvest of 1,261,364,000 pounds, with Ohio planters growing 23,760,000 pounds.

The prospective national peach crop was estimated at 66,984,000 bushels, ten per cent below last year's bumper production, with output in the North Central States expected to drop 43 per cent below last year.

The grape crop was estimated at 2,537,250 tons, slightly less than last year. Ohio's production was forecast at 22,400 tons as compared with 14,300 last year.

DIESELS for SUBMARINES

DIETS for SUB NORMALS

It takes the power of precision built Diesel engines to carry the battle to the enemy under sea. Their manufacture — like that of many weapons of modern warfare — requires gas as the heating agent. This is one part of the dual role of gas in the war effort.

And the same gas that helps build weapons of destruction to use against the enemy, aids in building strong bodies for Uncle Sam. Most defects of malnutrition in growing youth can be corrected by proper feeding. But the right food must be properly cooked to retain its maximum qualities of nourishment. So, this is the second big war job of your gas service.

Today, in all-out war, gas is doing double duty, serving industry, serving the home front. It's a double duty with a single purpose, to help win the war.

"The Mission Had Been Accomplished"

"A running fight between the bomber and the 18 Japanese pursuit planes continued for 75 miles . . . continued until the remaining pursuit ships exhausted their ammunition and turned back. With two engines gone and the plane practically out of control, the American bomber returned to its base after dark and made an emergency landing. THE MISSION HAD BEEN ACCOMPLISHED."

—President Roosevelt, in his Fireside Chat, April 28, 1942

THERE, in the words of President Roosevelt, is one of the war's most stirring episodes—a demonstration of how, with one man killed, another man's hand shot off, and a third man injured, our American boys stuck to the fight, bombed their objective, and brought their plane home.

Undoubtedly you felt a thrill when you heard it over the air, and maybe you'll have another thrill reading it again.

But your thrills won't win the war!

It takes planes—thousands of them—and tanks—thousands of them—and shells—millions of them—and bullets—billions of them! It needs ships and guns and jeeps . . .

It takes money.

It takes the money of all of us—the girls at their typewriters, the men at their machines—the clerks, the farmers, the messengers, the bookkeepers and the salesmen.

It needs a surging, patriotic Nation of people who love their country enough to buy a share of America by investing 10% of their wages every payday—a dime from every dollar—in War Bonds.

It needs—and it's getting it!—the cooperation of Labor and Management to put the Payroll Savings Plan over the top.

Your money in War Bonds—10% of your salary every payday—not only will help pay the bill to create the most powerful blasting force ever put together—but you'll do yourself and your family a favor, too.

Because every time your savings amount to $18.75, you'll get a War Bond—worth $25 in ten years.

You don't give your money—you invest it, both for Victory, and for your own personal security.

That's your mission—will you accomplish it?

Now Is the Time

IF YOU were a farmer or a steel mill worker—and perhaps you are—the most natural thing in the world would be for you to hope that farm prices and wages would keep rising.

All this rumpus in the papers and in Washington about the effect of granting a $1 a day increase in "little steel" and selling surplus grain for livestock feeding at less than parity prices would be nothing but a dirty dig in the ribs, as far as you'd be concerned. If the effect was to put more money in your pocket, then the effect would be good—no argument about that.

The truth of the matter is that there's a lot of argument about it. The argument is going on right now. A lot of things about the United States for years to come are going to be settled by the way the argument turns out. Anyone who thinks it's something two other fellows are debating about someone else is going to be fooled. This is something that concerns everybody—steel mill workers, steel mill bosses, farmers, farmers' daughters, traveling salesmen, American soldiers in Australia—everybody there is.

The United States has had a sort of collective vision about the possibilities of controlling its wartime economy to minimize the effects of inflation. Too much inflation is disastrous to the interests of everybody except the shrewd operators who manage to buy up the country's tangible assets, and there aren't many operators that shrewd. All the little people—the wage earners, the small salary class, the small business class and the small investor class—get it in the neck. It always has been that way when war demand for goods began to exhaust supplies and boost prices in a seller's market. But the United States dared to think it might be prevented in this war by using some of its new instruments of political control to stop it.

The question now is: Will the United States follow through or give up? Stopping inflation isn't something the other fellow can do. It can't be taken seriously by one minority and laughed off by another. It can't be done by taking buying power away from Joe Doaks and giving more buying power to Elmer Zilch. Stopping inflation calls for more honest cooperation than anything the United States ever tried to do.

Right off the bat the proposition was given a handicap when congress, afraid of organized labor and farm minorities, failed to give government any authority to hold down wages and agricultural prices. But there was the chance—the remote chance—that leaders of those minorities would rise to the occasion and refuse to do the normal thing, which would be to squeeze out every penny possible from the war effort; i.e., to bring about as much inflation as they possibly could. No one doubted that with food prices and wages both rising, inflation would follow inevitably.

So the United States continued to have its collective vision about the possibilities of cooperative action to save its neck. It read about the authoritarian means of averting inflation in Germany and dared to hope the same effect could be accomplished here by voluntary action. It dared to hope that in a crisis there would be leadership to suit the crisis—leadership that would rise above the rule of "git a-plenty while yore a-gittin'." That was the only way it could be done.

It's still the only to do it. We can have inflation, or we can have stability. The decision is not going to be made by pressing a button in Shangri-la, but right here where the people who are going to be affected by it live and work and hope. It's the most natural thing in the world for all of them to want more money; everybody wants more money, from the kid who mows the grass on up to the big businessmen drawing $150,000 a year plus bonus for knowing how to turn enough profit in an industry to make it possible for more people to get more money.

The trick of stopping inflation, if it can be done, lies in persuading human beings not to behave like human beings at a time when to do so may cause trouble. It's something like stifling the impulse to jump off high places, which comes as naturally to a lot of human beings as the impulse to try to get more money when they think there's a chance. Perhaps the trick was too tough to try and was foredoomed to be a flop. Perhaps inflation in the United States just can't be stopped in wartime. Perhaps Adolf Hitler was dead right when he figured that this country could never match by voluntary action the economic discipline that has made Germany under his dictatorship the world's most formidable military power.

We'll soon know. Runaway inflation in the United States resulting from unrestrained demands for higher wages and farm prices would be a disaster comparable to the defeat of France, the unpreparedness at Pearl Harbor and failure to hold the Axis at bay in Libya.

COMPETING WITH NATURE.

A North-East of Scotland farmer who received a letter from a government department instructing him to go on with his plowing as he had not plowed his whole quota, replied that his staff was depleted and that the lambing season had come upon him so that plowing would have to be suspended for a short period. He has received a reply instructing him to postpone the lambing season for a month.—Reynolds News

News Behind the News

Wallace Lays Groundwork for Post-War Wage Boosts in Nations Dealing with U. S.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 13—Some significant progress looking to raise world wage rates already is being urged inside the government by Vice President Wallace's board of economic warfare, but not without encountering difficulty.

The Wallace group wants the state department to run into some of our trade contracts with Latin American nations a provision whereby it will start raising some wages in those nations. It would be a comparatively simple matter for this government to require that certain labor standards be met in any goods it purchases from foreign countries.

Some officials, however doubt that this is the time to start world social reforming. They want to win the war first and they think that they could look at what is left with a more objective and experienced viewpoint.

But the Wallace boys believe it is never too early to start reforming and are pressing their views onward.

A decision is likely within a week or two.

First Attempt

The only very clearly social experimenting for the post-war world was done in the Haitian development company financing by the export-import bank, and this was done long before the war started. The company was created under government auspices for the growing of sisal and rubber, and has been trying to boost basic Haitian wage averages of 20 cents a day by offering 25 to 50 per cent more.

Another modest experimental beginning of Mr. Wallace's plan for the post-war world is the Peruvian cotton deal. The way the deal is being worked out offers the first concrete evidence of how this government will go about curtailing world farm production, how much it is likely to cost, and the difficulties to be encountered.

Agriculture Secretary Wickard signed in April an agreement with the Peruvian government whereby two-thirds of its cotton crop (200,000 bales) will be bought by that government and put in storage. This government is to continue to take the same amount each year hereafter, at the annual cost of about $10,000,000. The crop to be stored in Peru.

It was done as a good neighbor gesture, but the government has used the action to try out an international crop curtailment idea.

We promised to pay the Peruvians a one-and-a-half per cent increase in price for every one per cent their acreage was curtailed. The scheme also worked the other way, proposing to cut the price an equal amount for every similar increase in acreage.

No one outside the agriculture department paid much attention to the matter until recently, when the American cotton market began worrying about that surplus.

Senator Bankhead and others of the cotton bloc then extracted a promise from Mr. Wallace that the crop would not be brought into the United States unless our own production was unable to satisfy war requirements. The post-war difficulty of foreign agriculture production coming into competition with our own was thus encountered at the outset.

As long as cotton senators exist, that cotton apparently will have to be sold by this government to some foreign consumers in some way whereby it will not compete with American cotton. That will be difficult, if not impossible.

The agriculturists here, however, have not let that prospect dismay them.

The Peruvian farm production system is a Spanish hacienda approximation of our own share-cropper condition. The boys here are already feasting their eyes hungrily on that subject although it is not mentioned in the agreement.

No Great Alarm

The Hitler break-through of the Russian lines caused no great alarm here, even after he was able to develop it. With such fire power as the Germans possess—the ability to mass insuperable offensive weapons at a striking point beyond precedent in all history—Hitler could be expected to break through at any time on such a long front.

But as such breaks develop, the issue levels itself down to two main considerations, weapons and fighting spirit, both about equally important. The Russians are short on weapons but even longer than the Germans on fighting spirit.

Consequently, the eyes of Washington have been focused with some apprehension but no despair on the dispatches from the front.

Singles

Isolated sinkings of single ships, recently reported along our Atlantic seaboard, does not mean that Nazi subs are merely picking up strays and avoiding convoys. Frequently they can get into a convoy for one blow, but then have to withdraw immediately to escape detection. Consequently lone sinkings from convoys are common.

Big-Time Trigger Gal

She Wants Women To Get Wartime Gun Training.

By ADELAIDE KERR
Wide World Features Writer

SALLY CLARK of New York, who once dropped a couple of African lions with a couple of shots, wants shooting added to American women's wartime training.

"Women may need to know how to shoot for defense since so many men are at war," she says.

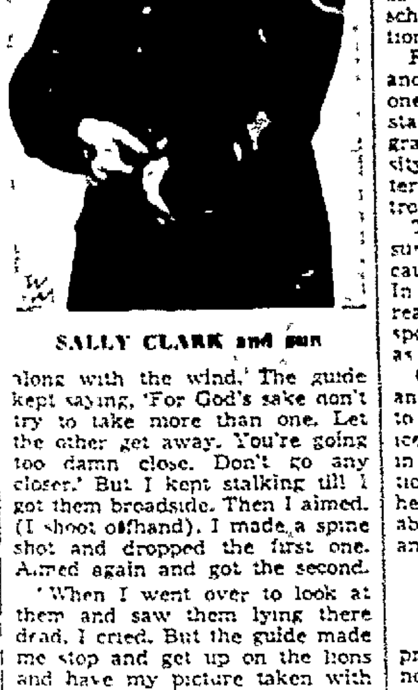

So she has proposed to the board of the American Women's Voluntary Services that it include rifle and shotgun practice in the training program offered the 90,000 members of its greater New York branch. (No decision has yet been made on the proposition, which is said to be favorably considered).

No Premonition

Sally Clark never dreamed of being an African explorer and big game hunter when she was a salesgirl in a New York five-and-ten-cent store. Then came her marriage to James L. Clark, who was at that time working with Carl Akeley, the explorer, and is now Director of Art Installation and Preparation for the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

"After I was married I didn't know how to cook and was scared of a mouse," she said, black eyes snapping under her blue AWVS cap. "I remained very quiet for six months listening to my husband and urging him to give me his ideas on life. I learned that his chief interest was game shooting. So I said 'Teach me to shoot.' He took me to the game hunters' club. I closed my eyes, pulled the trigger and hit the target. They all said that proved I was a natural. So I got busy and practiced every week."

She got so good that Mr. Clark took her with him on several African exploring trips. On the second made to the Serengeti Plains in Tanganyika, Territory in '28 Mrs. Clark popped off two male lions in two minutes with two shots.

SALLY CLARK and gun

How It Happened

"I shot them after I had started home once," she said. "The safari didn't turn out just as we expected and so I was going home early to look for an apartment. After I had told my husband goodbye and started off in the truck, it seemed the cylinders kept saying all the way, 'Don't go back. Don't go back. Don't go back.' So I didn't. I cabled my sister for $5,000 I had at home and fitted out my own safari and started out without telling anybody.

"One morning I said to the guide 'Today's lion day.' That afternoon we came upon two male lions feeding. We camouflaged ourselves with grass and moved along with the wind. The guide kept saying, 'For God's sake don't try to take more than one. Let the other get away. You're going too damn close. Don't go any closer.' But I kept stalking till I got them broadside. Then I aimed. (I shoot offhand). I made a spine shot and dropped the first one. Aimed again and got the second.

"When I went over to look at them and saw them lying there dead, I cried. But the guide made me stop and get up on the lions and have my picture taken with my guns. He said 'That was wonderful shooting. But I'll never take a woman hunting again. Never'."

THE TIME, THE PLACE, AND THE GIRL!

Training Commandos

It's a Case of Hard Work and Hard Play.

By LOWELL BENNETT
International News Service Correspondent

LONDON, July 13—"All work and no play" may well make Jack a dull boy—but "hard work and hard play" has certainly turned Britain's crack corps of Commandos into first class assault troops.

When they're not climbing into German camps and tearing enemy garrisons apart, or blowing up fortifications, docks, and munition factories, they're usually rehearsing such enterprises.

And during the infrequent in-between times — when they're neither rehearsing nor fighting—they're often to be seen in London on leave.

A good many of them have made the American Eagle Club their leave-quarters where they seem to enjoy reading the latest American magazines and trading questions and answers with the AEF boys.

Modest Group

But they're a remarkably modest lot of guys, these most highly trained troops in the British Empire. They really don't find any enjoyment in talking about their exploits, or their training, or their equipment.

If they can be gotten to talk about the Commandos — they usually prefer to tell you about their boss, "Nickie" Mountbattan, former chief of Britain's largest aircraft carrier, HMS Illustrious, and now Commander-in Chief of all "Special Service Troops."

"He's the kind of boss," one of them told me, "Who'd stand on the bridge of a destroyer and order his ship to tackle the Bismark. He's hard; makes all the men keep in top physical shape, but he keeps that way himself—and that's the best kind of commander we could have."

"If there's a reasonable chance of success, 'Nickie' will never give the order to withdraw. With him it's 'all in, and nobody out until the job's done'."

Feeling of Respect

The feeling Britain's Commandos hold for Mountbatten must be very similar to the respect the Americans and Filipinos on Bataan must have had for MacArthur.

"No matter how tough things get when we're in there trying to get through the Germans and blow something up, we always know the boss wouldn't have sent us unless we could succeed," is the way they look at it.

Commandos are not the biggest, or the broadest, or the heaviest men in the world. It's never been Britain's claim that they had in the Commandos an army of supermen. But the claim is forwarded, and in your reporter's view it's a reasonable one, that the training of the "Special Service troops" is so detailed and so intensive, that if they can't handle a job—then nobody can.

In a great many respects they're very similar to the American "Task Forces" whose training has fitted them to tackle the impossible—and successfully. As a matter of fact they're looking forward to meeting their American counterpart, when the Task Force Corps, General Marshall promised when he was here, comes over to help in the raids on the continent.

Not very much can be revealed about their formation, their organization, or their methods because their chief asset lies in the fact that the Germans never know what to expect.

But it can be said that they probably maintain the greatest fire-power per unit of any body of troops on earth. Each sub-section of men are issued with a number of two-inch mortars, light and heavy machine-guns, rapid-fire Garand-like rifles, the latest Colt 45's, and an assortment of grenades and other anti-personnel implements.

Those are the noisy weapons. But those aren't all the weapons. Each man is equipped with an eight-inch dagger — "pig- and hun-sticker" they call it. They all have ten-inch hockey sticks, loaded with lead at the end—and not loaded for balance alone—called 'koshs'. Knuckle-dusters may date back to the days of Knights in Armor, but they still come in mighty handy for quiet work.

Carry Personal Weapons

Further, they each have their own assortment of weapons and tools personal to themselves. Some men, I've met, carry long narrow needle-thin knives to supplement their daggers—these, they say, make admirable stickers for close quarter fighting.

One practice peculiar to the Commandos is their method of firing weapons. Everything is fired from the hip. This may sound a little unreasonable when applied to the two-inch mortar but believe me, that is fired from a raincoat-padded hip—and with a remarkable degree of accuracy.

Rifles, machine-guns, pistols are all fired from low-down. They explain that a greater degree of accuracy can be attained by this method.

"And when we advance to attack," one of them explained, "we let go with everything we have. Screams and all. If that doesn't scare the Germans, at least it makes them wonder what the hell's coming at them—and that's precisely the idea."

"We use the same tactics when we practice fight with the Home Guards here—but, believe it or not, it doesn't seem to disturb them as much as it does the Germans."

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, July 13, 1932.

Mahlon A. Povenmire resigned as superintendent of the Meeker schools to accept a similar position at Amanda, Fairfield county.

Frederick G. Smith, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Smith, was one of a group of 231 to pass the state medical examination. A graduate of Northwestern university, he prepared to begin his interneship at Ford hospital, Detroit.

The worst heat wave of the summer thus far struck Ohio, causing numerous prostrations. In Marion the temperature reached a high of 94 and in some spots in the state went as high as 101.

Governor George White issued an order to all department heads to cut expenses for personal service and maintenance 5 per cent in addition to previous reductions. Curtailment was necessary, he said, because of the state's inability to collect delinquent taxes and a steady decrease of income.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, July 13, 1922.

Leaders of the miners' union predicted that the union would not accept President Harding's proposal for a settlement of the nationwide strike. The situation resulting from a strike of railway workers was becoming more serious, threatening a tieup of transportation. Grievances of the railway shop crafts were placed before the president in a telegram in which charges of partiality against the railway labor board were clearly implied.

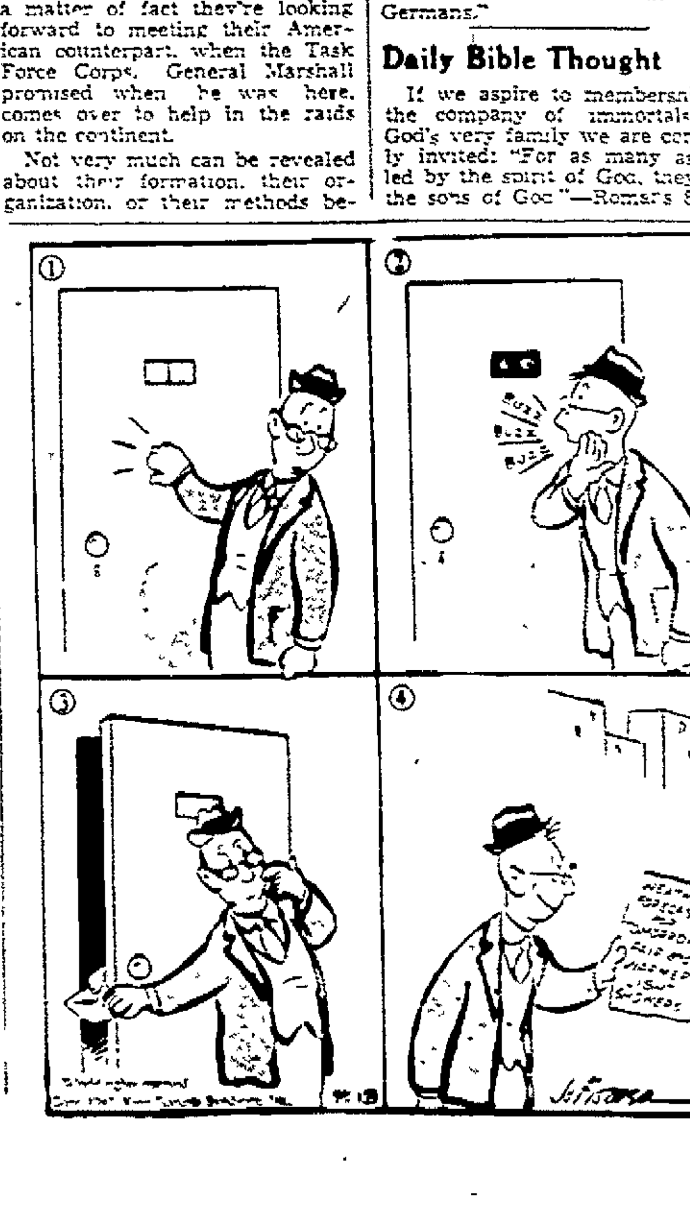

Preliminary plans for a new Forest Lawn Presbyterian church building were outlined at a meeting of the congregation. A committee composed of George Whysall, N. E. Arnold, Paul Caldwell, E. C. Caldwell and C. C. Appleman was named to get an estimate of the cost and prepare for a campaign to raise funds.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. Willis of Chestnut street.

Newton H. Davis, 49, former Marion county Ford automobile agent and later agent for the Packard, died of apoplexy at his home on East Church street. In his earlier years Mr. Davis was widely known as a bicycle racer, at one time holding the Marion county championship.

Cafe Comics

Yours Truly Has Always Been a Setup for the Wits Who Do The Stuff in the Back Room.

By DAMON RUNYON

IN CONSIDERING cafe entertainers of the type of the late Les Copeland, whose career I discussed the other day, it must be remembered that this has always been a field apart in the world of entertainment, with a technique all its own.

Many a great cafe entertainer whose art and personality can jam a comparatively small room with customers nightly and produce a weekly salary into four figures is lost on the stage. Similarly, many high priced performers of the stage do not know the right time when they attempt cafe appearances. They merely bore their audiences.

This has been demonstrated again and again. An experienced cafe entertainer who can hold an unruly "saloon" crowd in the palm of his hand throughout a long session on the floor may seem confused and futile up there on the rostrum before a theater gathering. He may employ every word and gesture with which he "kills" the cafe mob and never raise a ripple from the cushioned seats.

A theater star of purest ray serene whose every move enthralls in the theater and whose knowledge and practice of the dramatic art may be perfection plus, can speedily assume the aspect of a complete cope on a cafe floor and cause the crowd to marvel at his ineptness, if not to give him the good old razz. There are some performers who are swell in both places, but not many.

THE SCREEN, of course, is a specialized department of public entertainment that does not always reflect the true talent of performers because it requires certain attributes that are unnecessary on the stage or in a cafe.

Some of the stage and cafe artists have been highly successful in pictures but others of equal ability have failed for reasons that do not diminish their popularity in their own field.

The present king of the cafe entertainers in the comedy line is undoubtedly Joe E. Lewis who says the "E" stands for "Everglades." He slays cafe audiences everywhere. His name is the synonym for good business. He gets a big salary, but as a screen performer, Joe is something less than marvelous because the film cost him his personality. However, Joe is without illusion on this point.

"There was so much of me left on the cutting room floor," he says of a recent picture "that I am getting fan mall from mice."

Lewis and Jack White, another great cafe comedian, were among my favorites of the present generation of laughmakers. I go back with White further than either of us care to think about, but the fact that he retains his standing in his field after all these years is an indication of his talent.

IN TALKING of cafe comics, I am drifting far from Les Copeland's particular field. He was a piano player and singer, but I have always been a setup for the funny fellow. I used to think the greatest of them all was Sidney Gibson, who was around Chicago. The last time I saw him, he was with Olson and Johnson in a New York show.

The Ritz brothers were terrific cafe comics in their days, though the champion combination of cafe funny guys of my time was the huffle-scuffle trio, Durante, Clayton and Jackson. Then there was a single-handed operator who may have been forgotten by many of those who used to enjoy his work but who in my humble opinion was one of the funniest trio ever lived. His name was Jack Rose.

I think I should include another name—that of Jackie Osterman, who died at a comparatively early age. He was the fastest man on his feet, as the saying is, bar Milton Berle that I ever heard. I do not mean actual speed afoot, but facility in thought and repartee, which Berle is the present master.

Letters to Soldiers—Her War Career

Wide World Features

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Mrs. Ruth Buchanen, "Auntie Ruth" to the boys in service—has made letter-writing to soldiers her full-time contribution to the war effort.

She's done the job so well that she has been awarded an Emblem of Honor Pin, an honor ordinarily reserved for mothers of four or more sons killed in action.

Since October, 1940, 5,000 cheerful letters—birthday cards, get-well cards, sympathy cards—to former University of Michigan students, lonely Negro soldiers, a Greek boy, a Canadian in officers' training, and to hundreds of plain American boys in every rank have gone from her home.

"Auntie" Buchanan adopted her task voluntarily, saw it grow to a size she had never imagined, and met the swelling responsibility with a smile and a chuckle.

She's answered every request for correspondence. To a bomber pilot in the Navy who asked for mail daily she sent letters by the score. To 30 or more others she promised and delivered a letter weekly.

"My reward comes in small but powerful doses," she explains. Then she pulled out a reply from one of her Negro correspondents and read:

"The Japs ain't gonna get you, Aunt Ruth. They just put me in charge of 28 trucks and they're all pointed straight for Tokyo."

When it's all over Aunt Ruth plans to write a book, describing, among other things, the attitude of her boys before and after Pearl Harbor. And she will sprinkle the text with hundreds of amusing and serious incidents which have been described for her by soldiers from California to Maine.

Until then, she plans to keep up the job, spending hard-earned postage, simply "because of what they're doing for us."

This Flier Knows the South Pacific

By The Associated Press

LUBBOCK, Tex.—For one flying officer in America's fighting forces, the South Pacific war zones will be familiar ground. He is 2d Lieut. Rupert H. Beatty, now finishing his training at the flying school here.

Lieut. Beatty entered the service in 1937 and was sent to Hawaii's Hickam Field, in charge of radio communications. In 1939 he was assigned by the Department of Interior as a radio meteorologist to gather weather and tide data for commercial airlines operating from San Francisco to New Zealand.

This work took him through the Phoenix, Canton, Samoan and New Caledonia islands. During these months he established radio communications with the inhabitants of the Pitcairn island, famed hiding place of the mutineers of H. M. S. Bounty.

A Buffalo, N. Y., concern is making a new type of sponge sweatband to keep the sweat from running into the eyes of war production workers; they had to find substitutes for the ... ine and gum rubber.

The drive to save household fats is expected to net over 500,000,000 pounds a year, or enough to make from 50 to 100 million pounds of ... entire 100 pounds of fats will yield enough glycerine to make 24½ pounds of nitroglycerin.

Over Land and Sea and Sky America Casts Her Shadow

• Though scarcely well started on war production and several years behind her enemies, America, with a rapidly swelling stream of war weapons pouring off production lines, now is casting dark shadows of events to come on battlefields, sea-lanes and skyways.

• America's enemies had years headstart in "making" war weapons, yes. But America, though not even thinking of war-power, had many year's headstart on her enemies in getting the "ability" to make weapons for modern, machine war. She therefore had not only more of that ability than any other country; she had more than all of her enemies combined.

• Little realizing the tremendous war-power she was building up as a "by-product," America rapidly acquired that ability over many years because she was progressive, welcomed improvements, and believed in and practiced freedom of initiative and enterprise.

• That ability—the ability to produce electricity, more and more of which is running high-speed machines that are making more and more of efficient, durable war weapons—was equal last year to the energetic labor of 700,000,000 brawny men (5 times America's population) working fifty weeks. That ability is the electricity productive capacity of the privately owned electric power companies which produce 88% of America's power. This productive capacity, always planned to exceed by 1-3 America's immediate needs, met America's war emergency requirements without delay, and without curtailment of home and non-war uses.

• Even so, despite her unique war-power, America of course has a huge task ahead, the greatest that ever challenged the intelligence, the initiative, the enterprise, the selfless, common, united efforts in a common cause of people privileged to call themselves "Americans."

• So while we do have to buckle down to the grim business of winning the war, we need never waste one moment in doubt that we do have the power—electrically and otherwise — to lengthen steadily America's shadow until it completely blots out both the then fast-setting sun and the drooping swastika.

Some Cool Drinks for Summer Days

By ALICE DENHOFF

A COOL DRINK and a snack is a cool hot-weather antidote and a sure cure for the humidity-doldrums. There is nothing so refreshing as the sight of a punch bowl surrounded by platters of assorted crackers.

Summer Delight Punch Bowl is just as its name implies. Combine 1½ cups pineapple juice, one cup orange juice, ¼ cup lemon juice and 1 thinly sliced lime. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving add 2 cups of ginger ale. Pour over one pint of lime ice in punch bowl and garnish with mint sprigs.

Tomato Sherbet

Some folks like something tangy rather than something sweet. So make a tomato sherbet. It is also excellent for starting off a meal. For 6 portions, soften 1 teaspoon gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water. Heat ½ cup tomato juice and dissolve gelatin in it. Combine with 1½ cups tomato juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ¼ teaspoon grated onion and few drops tabasco sauce. Freeze in refrigerator tray, stirring twice, until of sherbet consistency (about 2½ hours).

Loganberryade

For a big punch, 1½ quarts, it should be worthwhile to use a cup of your precious sugar. Loganberryade is that good! Boil the cup of sugar and ½ cup water together for 5 minutes. Add ½ cup loganberry juice, the juice of an orange, ½ cup crushed canned pineapple and ½ cup strong tea. Let stand an hour. Strain over cracked ice. Just before serving, add 1 cup carbonated water and 1 pint ginger ale. Garnish with thin orange slices. For something new in the nibbling line, serve those fascinating new alphabet pretzels. Delicious with sparkling drinks, with salads, and fun for spelling out messages or romantic sentiments!

Fruit Deserts Are the Berries

by MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Food Editor

You might as well stop singing those sugar-rationing blues. For the duration of the war you're going to have to use your ingenuity and take advantage of the abundant natural sweets that are to be found in every market.

Luscious fruits that are now so plentiful will supply your sugar needs amply, if you give them a chance. By wise use of sugar substitutes you can even have those rich desserts your family loves.

Make it a habit to serve all the fresh fruits in season, in their natural state or in pies, cobblers, gelatin desserts or ice cream. Fresh fruit is full of natural sugars. Those not so sweet may be served with honey.

Right now you can do wonders with those giant blueberries, served plain with honey for breakfast, or whipped up into a pie that will bring cheers from the family.

Blueberry Cream Pie: Blend 1 1-3 cups (one 15 oz. can) sweetened condensed milk with ¼ cup lemon juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Fold in 1 cup fresh blueberries, pour into 8-inch pie crust, baked previously. Cover with ½ cup cream, whipped. Chill before serving.

Another winner is Blueberry Meringue Pie: Blend together 1 15 oz. can sweetened condensed milk, ¼ cup lemon juice and 2 egg yolks. Fold in 1 cup blueberries, pour into baked pie crust. Cover with meringue made with beaten whites of two eggs sweetened with 2 tablespoons sugar or honey. Bake in moderate oven until meringue is brown.

Also plentiful right now are raspberries, blackberries, peaches, plums and cherries, all of which are equally delicious in pies, tarts, short cakes, compotes or ice cream.

Any fresh fruit is a good beginning for an ice cream combination. Armed with a supply of ice cream mixes and fresh fruits, no dessert artist can go wrong. Fresh peaches, apricots, cherries and pineapple all make good fruit creams, or any of the berries previously mentioned. Some women prefer to mix several fruits in a cream for an unusual combination.

Peach Ice Cream is a sure-fire favorite. Use one package of any good vanilla ice cream mix, following directions on the package. Add ½ pint heavy cream, ¾ cup milk, ¾ cup mashed peaches sweetened with honey, pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Pour in refrigerator tray, and stir once, a half hour after freezing process begins. Then leave in freezing tray until ready to serve.

Fruit Compotes: When temperatures soar, cantaloupes, honeyballs, honey dew melons, and water melons are other fruits which lend themselves to dessert-making. Cut in small balls with your kitchen corer and combine in a compote, chill thoroughly and serve with a slice of lemon. Use your ingenuity in varying the compotes. Sometimes, the addition of peeled grapes adds greatly to them. Served on a warm summer day, any of these fruits should tempt even a waning appetite.

Right Foods Safeguard of Health in Wartime

By BETSY NEWMAN

With physicians going off by the hundreds to camps and distant lands to take care of our boys in blue, white and khaki, we who are left at home with only a very few doctors to assuage our aches and pains, must be careful to keep well. Need I remind you again to eat the correct foods—raw and cooked green and yellow vegetables, fresh and stewed fruits, plenty of fruit juices, meat, fish, eggs, cheese and milk. Keep right on doing this and get out in the sunshine as much as possible, and maybe you won't have to consult a doctor for the duration.

TODAY'S MENU

Breakfast

Orange or Tomato Juice, Whole Wheat or Corn Cereal, Milk, Soft Boiled Eggs, Toast, Coffee, milk.

Luncheon

Asparagus with Cheese Sauce, Toast, Green Apple Sauce, Tea, Milk.

Dinner

Smoked Ham Slice, Baked Sweet Potatoes, Cabbage and Carrot Salad, Buttered Broccoli, Steamed Blueberry Pudding, Coffee.

Asparagus with Cheese Sauce

1 No. 2 can green asparagus, liquid from asparagus plus water to make 1 c., ½ tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. butter, 2 tbsps. flour, 1 c. evaporated milk, 1 c. grated cheese, 6 slices toast, 1 pimento cut in strips.

Drain asparagus so as not to break the stalks, and heat to boiling, saving liquid for sauce. Cover asparagus to keep warm. Melt butter in top of double boiler, add flour and salt, stirring to blend well, then add hot asparagus liquid, cook until mixture begins to thicken, then add milk and cheese and continue cooking over boiling water until sauce is thick and cheese melted. Arrange warm asparagas on toast and pour hot sauce over all. Serves 5 or 6. Garnish with pimento strips. Fresh asparagus may be used, of course.

Smoked Ham Slice

2 lbs. smoked ham cut 1 inch thick, ½ c. corn syrup, light, 1 tbsp. grated orange rind, ½ c. orange juice, 1 tbsp. prepared mustard, 6½ slices orange (peeled).

Put ham in baking pan. Combine corn syrup, orange rind, orange juice and mustard, and pour over ham. Cover and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Uncover, put orange slices around ham and baste with syrup in pan. Bake uncovered for 15 minutes longer. Serves 6.

Steamed Blueberry Pudding

1 No. 2 can blueberries or the equivalent in fresh berries, 1 c. corn syrup, 1½ tsps. baking soda dissolved in 1 tbsp. hot water, 2 cps. sifted flour, 1 tsp. lemon rind, 2 tbsps. shortening, ½ tsp. salt.

Cut shortening into flour, add syrup containing soda, blueberries, salt and lemon rind. Mix well. Turn into well-greased pudding mold and steam 2 hours. Serve hot with sauce. If you use fresh berries, you probably will have to use a little milk or water to make pudding of right consistency.

Quick Grills An Aid in Summer

By ALICE DENHOFF

QUICK GRILLS are splendid for summer meals since they are easily prepared and can be extremely tasty. Don't forego a hot dish even if the thermometer is taking leaps. Serve one hot dish with salads and fruits.

A ham and tomato grill is a special treat for Sunday "brunch" or for luncheon. Slice green tomatoes thick. Cut boiled ham sliced ¼ inch thick, into pieces about the size of tomato slices. Spread ham with some rich brown prepared mustard. Top with tomato slice, season with salt, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, dot with butter and grill under low flame until tomato is cooked.

For a special dinner, serve lamb en brochette. It is inexpensive, but a definitely delicious main course. To serve 6, purchase 1½ pounds lamb. Select lamb from shoulder or leg, sliced about ½ inch thick. Cut into one-inch squares. Select a slender cucumber and slice ¼ inch thick. Alternate pieces of lamb and cucumber slices on 6 skewers. Sprinkle with salt, spread with prepared mustard and roll in breadcrumbs. Broil under moderate heat, turning frequently.

WPB WORKING ON SHORTAGE PROBLEMS

New Phase Formally Marked by Recent Realignment.

WASHINGTON, July 13 (Wide World)—Rub out "conversion" and write in "shortages."

That's the key to the new phase of America's war production drive which was marked formally by Donald M. Nelson's "realignment" of the war production board.

Big job of the new phase, says Nelson, is "to try to fit our cloth to the pattern; to readjust to a program involving scarce materials."

Nelson indicates that even the demands of the army and navy may have to be modified to get maximum use out of short supplies of raw goods.

The army and navy will continue to tell the war production board what they need—but, says Nelson, "it is our responsibility to tell them when a shortage develops."

In brief, Nelson sums up the present stage of the war production drive this way:

The job of curtailing peacetime industries is just about over. The job of converting to wartime production is about completed.

What remains is to direct production of maximum war ends through control of the flow of materials.

The one big conversion job remaining, he says, is "to change over a number of these smaller plants to war production."

In the polysyllabic mumbo-jumbo that always surrounds big operations, the major items on the new agenda are: allocation, simplification, concentration and decentralization.

SEND-OFF FOR ARMY SELECTEES PLANNED

Spanish War Vets' Auxiliary To Be in Charge.

Members of Marion Camp No. 52, United Spanish War Veterans, will sponsor the next send-off for Marion county men entering the U. S. Army, in keeping with an order from the state draft board, the send-off will not be held until the men have been officially inducted into service and leave Marion for their training.

Plans for the send-off were discussed at a meeting of the camp Friday night. Under new regulations men accepted for service will be granted a 14-day furlough after receiving their acceptance papers and uniforms. Acceptance of the furlough is optional with the men and those preferring to enter service immediately may do so. At the expiration of the furlough the men will leave Marion in a body, and at that time will be given a send-off in which all citizens will be asked to take part.

At last night's meeting Franklin B. Scott was named a delegate to the National encampment to be held at Cleveland Aug. 16 to 20. T. E. Kinnear was named alternate.

STEEL PLATE PRODUCTION EXCEEDS MILLION TONS

Over Mark for Second Consecutive Month.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 13 — Production of steel plates, vital to ships and tanks, exceeded a million tons in June for the second consecutive month "and July output is expected to be larger," the magazine Steel calculated today.

In view of the longer month and new records being set by some mills, "some observers set 1,250,000 tons for July as possible, but more conservative estimates do not reach that high. It is expected the goal of 1,400,000 tons monthly will be reached in the fall."

Continuing its weekly review, steel noted that "deliveries of small lots of steel are being made to various parts of the world by clipper airplane. An order for valve spring wire was taken recently by an eastern wire producer, to be sent to India by plane."

The extent to which allocations and directives have superseded priority ratings "is indicated by the statement of an eastern steelmaker that more than 83 per cent of its orders are covered by direct order and less than 17 per cent is available for A-1-A or lower ratings. In the Chicago district, mills estimate that approximately 90 per cent of orders are on directives.

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, July 13—Charles J. Johnson of Boston, Mass., is being held in the Union county jail on suspicion of being a deserter from the U. S. army. He was taken into custody Thursday night at Richwood by Sheriff M. S. Roosa.

Sheriff Roosa contacted the fifth corps area headquarters at Fort Hayes regarding the prisoner and was ordered to hold him until further instructions. The sheriff stated that he went to the home of Joe Ridgeway at Richwood Thursday night in search of Tom Ridgeway who was reported to have deserted the army. The latter was not there but he became suspicious of Johnson and started to question him. Johnson, the sheriff stated, admitted walking away with Tom Ridgeway from Fort Dix, N. Four Camel Caravans... complete road shows for men in uniform

750 performances to 1,000,000 and more soldiers, sailors, marines, and coast guardsmen as this goes to press

JULY 31, 1941! That's when the Camel Caravans hit the road. And they've been at it ever since: four performances a day in some camps to audiences of 15,000 to 20,000.

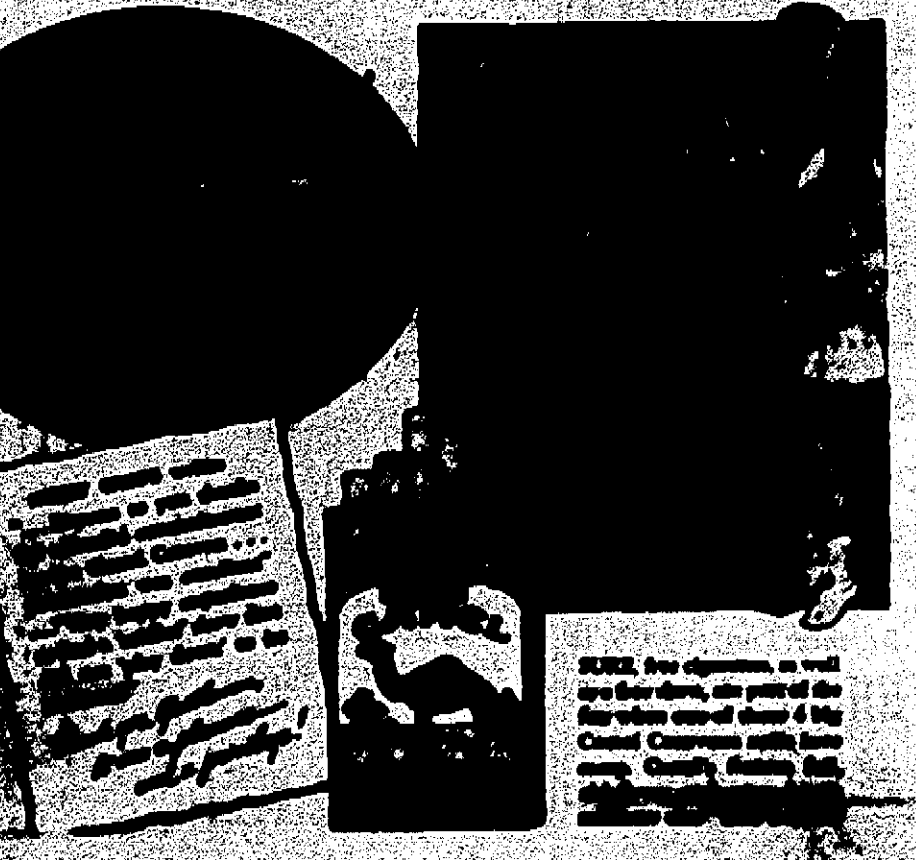

Yes, it seems you can't find a military scene anywhere without Camels in the picture ... cigarette or show. Or both. And both seem to have won top rating with the men in all the services. According to applause and letters from morale officers, the shows are a "smash hit!" And according to sales records, the cigarette is a "smash hit," too. The top-ranking favorite in P.X.'s and Canteens.

Larry French Leads Major League Hurlers With 10 Straight Wins

Dodger Star Limits Bucs To Three Hits To Post 10th Victory.

By The Associated Press

Lefty Larry French, leading pitcher of the major leagues and only undefeated hurler among all the regular [illegible] of the biggest [illegible] since the [illegible] of [illegible].

The Brooklyn Dodgers picked up French for the waiver price of $7,500 late last season and the 35-year-old [illegible] hasn't been beaten since.

He won his tenth game of the year yesterday, holding the Pittsburgh Pirates to three hits as he pitched the Dodgers to a 3-1 [illegible] in the first game of a double-header.

The Dodgers lost the second game 4-3 and watched their National league lead shrink to eight [illegible], but French reached the halfway mark of a season that promises to be his best in the majors. His best previous year was 1936, when he won 18 and lost nine for the Chicago Cubs.

Cards Win Two

The St. Louis Cardinals drew one game closer to the leaders by whipping the Boston Braves, 5-1 and 3-2, the first game on a five-hit pitching job by Harry Gumbert. Walker Cooper led the Cardinal attack in both games, hitting a home-run, three doubles and a single in seven times at bat.

In the American league, the first place New York Yankees also divided a double bill but boosted their lead to four and a half games with the help of the St. Louis Browns. While the Yankees were losing to the Detroit Tigers, 6-4, and winning 3-1 in 12 innings, the Browns pinned a double defeat on the second place Boston Red Sox, 1-0 and 10-4.

Johnny Vander Meer matched the pitching exploits of French and Gumbert by pitching a three-hitter at the Philadelphia Phils as the Cincinnati Reds captured both ends of a certain bill. Vandy struck out 13 men in winning 2-0. Elmer Riddle pitched six-hit ball and the Reds won the nightcap, 2-1.

Warneke Loses First

At Chicago, Lon Warneke made his first appearance since returning to the Cubs and was whacked soundly by the New York Giants, who captured the opener, 6-2. The Cubs bounced back to square accounts, 8-2.

The Cleveland Indians took both ends of their twin bill from the Washington Senators, winning the first, 9-7, with a two-run rally in the tenth inning and the second, 5-3 on Al Smith's [illegible] hit pitching.

The day's best pitching performance in the American league was turned in by John Wade, who held the Philadelphia Athletics to three hits and [illegible] three times [illegible] as the Chicago White Sox took the second game, 11-1. Roger Wolff pitched five-hit ball in winning the first game for the A's, 3-2.

Defending Champ Fires 67 To Take Poland Open Lead

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 12—Reggie Myles of Cleveland has a good chance to retain his Poland Open golf crown today although he was one stroke behind the leader in the warm-up tourney.

Lloyd Gullickson of the Congress Lake club at Hartville set the pace in yesterday's pro-amateur match by shooting a 34-33-67 over the Poland country club's nine hole, par 36 course. He is expected to lead nearly 60 amateurs and professionals in an effort to wrest the crown from Myles.

Myles has a 35-33—68 but it was without the benefit of his usually-inspired putts. A little sharp shooting on the greens might give the Clevelander his third title—and $500—in the fifth edition of the 36-hole fixture.

Other leading professional scores included: Herman Keiser, Akron, 36-35—71; Al Abrodt, Youngstown 38-33—71; Roy Brenhart, Alliance, 37-37—74; Ted Huge, Cleveland, 38-36—74; Vally Dirodis, Akron 37-37—74; Frank Long, Salem, 38-36—74.

Yesterday's pro-amateur ended in a triple tie with three 67s. Partners were Myles and Jim Pipoly, Gullickson and Dr. W. A. Welsh, and Wynn Tredway and Andy Swedko.

MOVEMENT TO HOLD OHIO PUBLIC LINKS TOURNEY UNDER WAY

Toledo District Officials Desire To Keep Event on Schedule.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 12—With [illegible] of Ohio's triple-laden golf championships off to a running start today—the state amateur at the Cincinnati Maketewah club and the women's Buckeye title race at Columbus Country club—a move was under way to put the [illegible] annual public links fixture back on the calendar.

Originally scheduled for Aug. 2-4 at the Heatherdowns club in Toledo the "pay-as-you-play" 72-hole medal play classic—as well as the 18-hole race for women—was canceled a couple of weeks ago when a survey showed a majority of the prospective entrants would be unable to compete.

Today, however, Secretary Ray Pennell of Columbus and Toledo district officials desired to keep the date on the slate, suggesting Aug. 13-15 as the dates.

Pennell has launched another survey to determine if a fair representation might be obtained from the larger districts of Cleveland, Akron, Youngstown, Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati and from the Ohio river sector near Steubenville.

"If we can get a fair number of entrants from outside Toledo," the secretary said, "there's a chance we'll hold the tournament. We may run the full 72 holes over two days, or we may cut the tourney to a single day, with 36 holes."

Dick Rhyan of Columbus won the men's public links title a year ago, while Mrs. P. J. (Thelma) Linster of Mansfield won the women's crown for the second straight year. Mrs. Linster is among entrants seeking the Ohio women's championship in the tourney starting today at Columbus Country club, in which Miss Neoma Copic of Toledo, winner of the public links laurels in 1939, is defending queen.

At Cincinnati, in the state amateur, the defending champ is another Toledoan—youthful Frankie Stranahan. The amateur winds up next Saturday, and the women's event ends Friday, each with a 36-hole match play round.

NEW YORK, July 13—(Wide World)—Weather report: Are those storm clouds brewing among the peaceful Pirates of Pittsburgh? 'Tis said several Buc players have their own idea why Al Lopez wasn't picked on the National league's all-star outfit. And some of 'em are rooting for Al to land a manager's job—Whether it's in smoky-town or some other place.

Punching The (Mail) Bag—Ray Carlen writes: tell the boys not to pooh-pooh Hennery Armstrong's comeback yet. Because it looks like the hammer still has a lot of fights left in him ...and Willie Gilzenburg takes pen in hand to inform the folks that it wasn't his welterweight champ, Red Cochrane, but challenger Ray Robinson, who insisted their Sept. 10 fight might be a non-title fuss.

Dis-A and Dat-A — Rudy York gets a five-grand bonus if he knocks in 100 runs this year. He's on the 50-mark now.

But what the boys would like to know is who made a fancy fielder of him? ... The way he's improved, there's even hope for Zeke Bonura. That's not an air-raid siren you hear coming out of Madison, Wis., these evenings. Harry Stuhldreher just got a look at that ten-game schedule they've fixed up for his Badgers this fall.

Swedish Miler Equals Unofficial World Mark

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, July 11—That 4:06.2 clocking for the mile which Gunder Haegg established just eight days ago already has been equalled. Arne Andersson, who was second to Haegg on July 2, last night was clocked in the same figure.

KANSAS CITY BLUES TO OPPOSE LEAGUE ALL-STARS JULY 23

Four Columbus Red Birds Are Among 18 Named to Squad.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 12—For the third time in four years, the Kansas City Blues will meet outstanding players of the other seven clubs in the American association's ninth annual all-star game in Ruppert stadium, Thursday night, July 23.

Manager Bill Burwell of Louisville will pick the all-stars, and will name two players to round out the squad of 18. The other 16, announced today, were selected by the association chapter of baseball writers. Burwell also will select one of the rival managers to act as coach.

Four Columbus Red Birds, three each from Indianapolis, Louisville and Minneapolis, two from Milwaukee and St. Paul, and a lone Toledo Mud Hen, will make up the all-star roster.

The all-star squad, as originally selected: first base, McCarthy, Indianapolis; second base, Drews, St. Paul; third base, Benedik, Indianapolis; short stop, Stancy, Milwaukee; utility infielders, Kress of Louisville and Myatt of Columbus; outfielders, Vosmik of Minneapolis, Blackburn of Indianapolis, Tipton of Kansas City, and Norman of Milwaukee; catchers, Sears of Kansas City, Lacy of Louisville and Heath of Columbus; pitchers, Wensloff of Kansas City; Munger and Brecheen, of Columbus; Potter of Louisville, and Haefner of Minneapolis.

Second team: Weintraub, St. Paul, 1st; Milosevich, Kansas City, 2nd; Lang, Kansas City, 3rd; Christman, Toledo, ss; Hudson, Milwaukee, and Antonelli, Columbus, utility; Byrnes of Toledo, Gilbert of Louisville, Morgan of Louisville, and Gullic of Milwaukee, outfielders; Linton and Giuliani of Minneapolis, and Spandel of Toledo, catchers; Coffman and Hinkl of St. Paul, Munzo of Indianapolis, Logan of Indianapolis and Ardizoia of Kansas City, pitchers.

Since Tipton, Sears and Wensloff of Kansas City will surrender their all-star berths to play with their home town Blues, they will be replaced by the next in line. Vosmik, Blackburn and Norman become the regular outfield, with Byrnes moving into the utility spot. Lacy becomes the No. 1 catcher, Heath No. 2 and Linton No. 3. Munzo replaces Wensloff as the No. 1 pitcher, and Coffman moves into the No. 5 spot as the other selectees move up a notch.

Marion Hawks Drop 9 to 8 Decision To Galion Jaycees; Play Tiffin Team Wednesday

Winners Collect 12 Hits Off King Bacon and Joe Roseberry To Post First Win Over Locals in Four Starts.

The Marion baseball Hawks' bid for Ohio State semi-pro league recognition was momentarily interrupted yesterday as the Galion Jaycees blasted 12 hits off two Marion hurlers in fashioning a 9-8 victory at Heise park in Galion.

It was the Jaycees' first win over the Marion team in four starts. The Hawks hung a double defeat over Galion in a July fourth meeting and added a single scalp in a mid-week game at Lincoln park last week.

King Bacon was Manager Ted Anderson's starting mound choice. Bacon pitched the first five innings allowing 10 hits for 8 runs. He was relieved at the start of the sixth by Joe Roseberry, who limited the Galionites to two hits and one run in the last three frames.

The Hawks are slated to meet the Tiffin Mudhens Wednesday night at Tiffin.

Last Friday's league all-star game scheduled to be played in the home park of the league-leading Fremont Green Sox was cancelled because of inclement weather. The game will probably be played at an early date, Charles LeCrone, league president, has informed club officials.

Shortstop Fritz Walters, injured in last Wednesday's Marion-Galion game was reported improved today. He is expected to rejoin the club in two weeks.

Columbus Splits Double with Tribe, Still in 2nd Spot

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Blues headed east today grateful that a two-weeks' home stand in which they played only .533 ball had cost them just one game of their first-place margin in the American association.

The Blues split a double-header with Minneapolis yesterday, winning the first, 6 to 1, and losing the second, 3 to 3.

In two other association park double-headers also were divided. But at Toledo the Mud Hens won a twin bill from Louisville, 10 to 5 and 7 to 3, running their victory string to six games.

Columbus took the opener from Indianapolis, 3 to 2, but dropped the second, 4 to 0, as the Tribe ended a six-game losing streak. The Red Birds, playing on their home field since June 18, won 21 out of 29 games over that period to climb from sixth to second place.

Forty-nine hits were recorded in 15 innings of play at Milwaukee as St. Paul won the first game, 14 to 3, and the Brewers the second, 12 to 5. The Saints collected 22 hits in their victory and Milwaukee made 15 in taking the nightcap.

RAF STRIKES DANZIG BASE OF NAZI SUBS

Bombers Make Long Daylight Flight To Hit Docks.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 13—The new phase of Britain's air campaign to drive the U-boat from the seas by smashing Germany's replacements as fast as she can get them into the water is the story behind the RAF's sensational daylight raid on Danzig Saturday.

That neither daylight, distance nor the weather deterred squadrons of British bombers from sweeping low over Germany on a 1,750-mile roundtrip in daylight showed the Nazis now are exposed to mighty air assault anywhere and any time.

The attack cost but three planes and unofficial indications that this was less than five per cent of the attacking force meant that at least 60 bombers made it.

On this longest and riskiest daylight operation by the RAF so far, the British dumped heavy bombs on Danzig's submarine yards in the bright light of the northern evening. Raided simultaneously was another U-boat base, Flensburg, on the German-Danish border 400 miles nearer England than Danzig.

To get to Danzig, the Bombers had to buck thunderstorms, treacherous winds and icing for hours over Germany's defense-studded home precincts.

ASSAILANT LYNCHED BY 15 ARKANSAS MEN

Dragged from Hospital and Driven Through City Streets.

By The Associated Press

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 13—Dragged from the hospital where he lay critically wounded, a 25-year-old Negro who officers said answered the description of a man who tried to assault a defense-plant worker's wife, was lynched by a group of 15 men early today.

The Negro, identified by Sheriff Monroe Watts as Willie Vinson, was hanged from a winch at a cotton-gin just outside the city at 12:40 a. m. after the party had driven him a mile from the hospital and then dragged him seven blocks through city streets.

The woman was dragged from her trailer-camp home early Sunday morning by a man who first clapped his hands across her mouth and throat as she lay sleeping with her 19-month-old son. Her husband was at work at the nearby Red River ordnance depot.

Threatening death if she made an outcry, the Negro pulled the woman toward a wooded section but she managed to struggle free.

Aroused by her screams, residents of the area trailed a fleeing figure to a cafe on highway 82. There one of them shot and critically wounded Vinson, after he had slugged one of the pursuers with a flashlight and had stood off two others with a butcher knife.

Hitler Still Has Tough Job Before Gaining Caucasus

by DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Herr Hitler has continued to purchase mileage in Russian territory at a terrible cost in German lives over the week-end thereby increasing the danger of severance of the central and southern Red armies and bringing him nearer to his dream of crashing the gateway to the Caucasus.

There is perhaps small satisfaction in the fact that this advance was to be expected because of the weight of the Nazi attack. In assaying the position, however, we must take into consideration a fact to which the Bolshevists themselves point today, namely, that the invaders have a long, bloody course to pursue before they can hope to cut off the approaches to the Caucasus from the north, for the Red line still holds.

The Nazi Fuehrer is prepared to see a wholesale slaughter of his men in this all-out effort to ham-string the Russians and reach oil this year. The Reds are far from beaten, though, and are continuing their magnificent resistance, despite grave lack of equipment. Hitler still has a long way to go, as the Muscovites remark, and time is working against him.

Some compensation for the Russian setbacks is to be found in the position of the battle for Egypt, where the British have further improved their position and were still retaining a very active initiative at latest reports. It would be a tragedy for the Allies if Nazi Field Marshal Rommel were to make a quick conquest of Egypt and then be able to throw his army against the Middle East while his master drove for it from the north. Such a development might spell the difference between holding Hitler at the gateway to the Caucasus and being forced to let him through.

The growing initiative of the British in Egypt gives hope that General Sir Claude Auchinleck has received or will receive in the immediate future sufficient resources to enable him to make a big scale attack on Rommel before the German himself gets the further aid which will enable him to resume his offensive. If Rommel could be knocked out now, it certainly would put a much different complexion on the Hitlerian drive for the Middle East, and would moreover vastly ease the British position in the Mediterranean.

D. R. Crissinger Dies at Home Here

outlook that of a small-city banker, was conservative and consequently welcome after the tremendous financial disturbances created by the World war.

Originally a Democrat

When he started in public life, Mr. Crissinger was a Democrat and all his local positions were gained on the Democratic ticket. However, friends recall that in 1896 when the Democratic party split on the money question, Mr. Crissinger along with other conservatives on the money question gradually began to shift their beliefs toward those of the Republican party.

The fact that Mr. Crissinger was known as a Democrat even in 1921 was no bar to his appointment by President Harding, a Republican. The two men had been close friends since boyhood, both having been children together in Caledonia. Their relationship continued throughout their lives.

Mr. Crissinger was chairman of the Marion Civic committee of seven men named to supervise communitywide arrangements for the Harding front porch campaign in 1920. Other members of the committee were J. F. Prendergast, Frank Huber, Hoke Donithen, J. A. Schroeter, O. S. Rapp and French Crow.

Joins Investment Firm

After Mr. Crissinger resigned as governor of the federal reserve board in 1927 he became associated with a mortgage loan concern and remained in Washington until 1934 when he returned to Marion and for a time until his health began to fail, resumed the practice of law.

Mr. Crissinger was born on a farm in Tully township Dec. 10, 1860, to Mr. and Mrs. John Crissinger. His father was a native of the county, of Pennsylvania ancestry, and was a widely known lumberman. His mother was Margaret Ganshorn Dunham Crissinger, a native of Germany. To the union two children were born, Daniel R. Crissinger and a son who died in infancy.

Mr. Crissinger, the son, was educated in Caledonia public schools. In 1885 he was graduated from Buchtel college in Akron with a B. S. degree and in 1886 received his law degree from the University of Cincinnati. Before receiving his degree he studied law for some time with the late W. Z. Davis of Marion who later became a judge of the Ohio supreme court.

When he first came to Marion, Mr. Crissinger lived at the home of a former Caledonia man, Frank Beckley, who was sheriff at that time.

Career As Attorney

Mr. Crissinger began his legal career with Judge Davis. Then for short times he was associated successively with Attorneys Jack Ryan and Harry Quigley. About 1895 he formed a law partnership with the late John Wolford, the firm existing until Mr. Wolford's death in 1898. About 1900 Mr. Crissinger and Fred E. Guthery formed a partnership which lasted through various names until after Mr. Crissinger went to Washington. In 1914, J. M. Strelitz was added to the firm and the name became Crissinger, Guthery and Strelitz and so continued until about 1921.

He was outstanding as a corporation lawyer, serving as such for many industries, both large and small, in Marion. He was general counsel for the Marion Steam Shovel Co. for 22 years and also served as attorney for the Erie railroad, Huber Mfg. Co., and National City Bank & Trust Co. at various times.

Veteran attorneys who remember when Mr. Crissinger was active in legal work described him as a "lawyer of intuition," meaning that he seemed to know instinctively the solution to complicated problems of law. He was also regarded as a good trial lawyer and one of the most [illegible] were Charles G. Dawes, who served as comptroller of the currency about 1900 and later became vice president under Coolidge, and the late Atlee Pomerene, once United States senator. The late State Senator Geer of Galion was also in the class as was Charles Scroggs, prominent Bucyrus attorney.

Mr. Crissinger was also prominent in Marion's business life. He was one of the organizers of the City National bank, now the National City Bank, and formerly was its president. He was also one of the organizers of the old Marion County Telephone Co. He was the bank's first vice president.

He was prominent in agricultural activities of the county for years and knew the business as well, perhaps, as any one in this district. For a number of years he operated extensively, owning a 365-acre farm in Pleasant township on the Cusick road and other acreage in the eastern part of the county, operated as one farm. This included 330 acres in Scott township, 120 in Scott and 160 in Claridon township. During the period from the middle 90's to about 1920 he was one of the largest cattle feeders in this part of the state. At one time he also specialized in Aberdeen Angus cattle.

At various times, he also owned real estate in Marion. Not long after coming to Marion he built a home at the corner of East Center and Jefferson streets and later bought a property just west of the electric company terminal on West Center street. His parents formerly lived in the old Humphrey home which was located on the site of the terminal.

He was a member of the Masons, being a Shriner and a Knight Templar, and was also affiliated with the Elks, Knights of Pythias and Eagles lodges. While in Washington he was a member of the Metropolitan club.

Mr. Crissinger was married in 1888 to Miss Ella Frances Scranton of Concord, Mich., who died Nov. 14, 1941. A daughter, Miss Dona Ruth Crissinger at home, survives. Another daughter, Beatrice, died in childhood.

plant managers at a penny a pound.

Of the 380,895 pounds nearly 280,000 pounds was brought in through the petroleum industry.

Quota Exceeded

The eight-pound per capita quota set as a national figure was exceeded by .6 of a pound in Marion county.

During the campaign Boy Scouts and Marion county residents placed an estimated 14,000 pounds of scrap in a general collection bin in the southwest corner of the city parking lot at South Prospect and West Church streets. Proceeds from the sale of rubber placed in the bin will be turned over to the United Service Organization.

Marion Boy Scouts under the direction of Loy D. Rhoads, scoutmaster of Troop 1 sponsored by the Elks lodge, made a house to house canvass throughout the city in an effort to obtain quantities of rubber not reached by the petroleum industry's campaign. Scout groups in Waldo, Caledonia and other outlying Marion county communities also participated in the drive. Fred Strother, Harding area executive reported.

Report on Yields

The Standard Oil Co. with four company owned stations in Marion collected a total of 83,275 pounds of scrap during the drive to rank first among petroleum companies. Hi-Speed with 40,272 pounds was second and Gulf refining Co. with 26,374 pounds was third.

Other companies collecting more than 10,000 pounds were: Sinclair, 24,321; Pure Oil, 22,085; Johnson Oil Co., 13,640; Morral Supply Co., 12,980, and Shell Oil Co., 12,278.

Bulk plant managers in Marion said today they will continue to purchase scrap rubber.

Henderson Warns Farm Price Limits Will Cripple Anti-Inflation Plan

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 13 — The price control appropriation went before the senate today with a warning by Leon Henderson that price fixing limitations sought by farm groups would cripple an important part of the anti-inflation program.

The limitations are contained in a $1,856,000,000 supplemental appropriations bill for war agencies. The bill includes $120,000,000, tied down by a series of restrictive amendments, to finance a year's operation of the office of price administration which Henderson directs.

Although the $120,000,000 OPA fund allowed by the appropriations committee is an increase of $45,000,000 above the amount previously voted by the house, it is $20,000,000 less than the smallest amount the price administrator had asked. He said the cut would limit OPA operations severely but that this problem could be met.

Chief Criticism

Henderson's main criticism of the bill was directed against an appropriation committee amendment to prevent the OPA from fixing prices of any commodity made in whole or in part from a farm product unless the price reflected 110 per cent of parity.

In a statement issued Saturday night Henderson said the farm price restriction would force repeal of the general maximum price regulations because it would require studies on thousands of items of food, clothing and industrial products before ceilings could be set.

Senator Wagner (D-NY) asserted in a broadcast last night that the appropriation for Henderson's office was the most important issue on the home front.

"Every grasping landlord, every speculator in war materials and consumers' goods, every producer reaching out for undue profits at the nation's expense is today ganging up on the OPA," Wagner said.

He agreed with the price administrator in condemning another amendment which would prohibit the use of subsidies to hold down the cost of living.

Henderson declared that a third change, requiring senate confirmation of appointments of all OPA employes paid $4,500 a year or more, would inject politics into price control administration.

Another issue was the 2½ cents a gallon increase in gasoline prices in the 17 rationed states.

The appropriations committee wrote into the measure a provision which in effect would deny the OPA funds to enforce this price increase in such states as Georgia, which receives gasoline by pipe line and where no additional transportation costs have resulted from the cessation of ocean tanker service.

If the senate accepts the appropriation committee changes, the bill will go back to the house for action.

RUSSIA

Astrakhan where the Volga pours into the Caspian.

The Vichy radio broadcast a report that the Germans had occupied Pokrovsk, 40 miles northwest of Rostov, in a new and fourth spearhead of the southern drive.

The German high command said the Russians were "being "pursued on a broad front in the southern sector" and that Russian defenses had been breached and 30,000 Russians captured in a big new encirclement southwest of Rzhev, 135 miles northwest of Moscow.

The Rzhev salient is the closest foothold to the Soviet capital which the Germans were able to hold throughout the winter of Russian offensive.

A special announcement by Hitler's high command said several Russian infantry and cavalry divisions and a tank brigade had been trapped in violent fighting which started 11 days ago through a forest line of fortifications.

"The number of prisoners and the amount of booty is still increasing," the announcement said.

The regular communique from Berlin told of a strong diversion counterattack by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's troops north and northwest of Voronezh, where the Russians have been pounding for a tender spot in the exposed flank of the German drive to the Don.

The strength of the attack was reflected in the German claim that 111 Russian tanks had been smashed in repelling the Red army's challenge to Nazi bridgeheads across the Don.

The German communique also said the Russians were beaten back after establishing a bridgehead on the west bank on the Volkhov river south of Leningrad and were beaten off in an attack on a Nazi bridgehead on the river.

SINKINGS TOTAL 362 IN WESTERN ATLANTIC

Two New Caribbean Losses Reported Today.

By The Associated Press

The reported sinking of a Dominican schooner and of a small Panamanian merchantman, one of whose survivors was given first aid treatment aboard the attacking submarine, put at 362 today the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since U. S. entry into the war.

Both new sinkings occurred in the Caribbean, that of the sailing craft Carmen being reported from Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, as having taken place yesterday, and the Panamanian being announced by the navy as a recent torpedo victim.

Twenty-two other craft were announced last week as having been sunk, the victims being six American vessels, six British, three Norwegian, one Cuban, one Dutch, one Latvian, one Belgian, one Honduran one Greek and one allied but otherwise unidentified ship.

NEW NAZI TERRORS REPORTED BY RUSSIA

Say Germans Wiped Out Entire Village in Norway.

By The Associated Press

From Europe's lands of slavery under the Nazi heel came new accounts of outbreaks and penalties today.

Reuters reported in London that a Soviet information bureau broadcast said the Germans had wiped out an entire village in Telemark province of southern Norway, shooting every man, woman and child. A spokesman for the Norwegian government in London said no report of such an outrage had reached the government.

In Pas De Calais department of occupied France, gendarmes and German police fought a pitched battle with a group of Frenchmen who barricaded themselves in a house and hurled hand grenades. The Germans who finally stormed the house said it was an arms cache for Communists.

In Paris German authorities announced that "all near male relatives as well as brothers-in-law and cousins" of fugitives from German military justice accused of terrorism or sabotage would be shot. Women relatives would be sentenced to hard labor and children under 18 sent to reform schools in this newest of the hard-handed measures to keep the French in line.

Condition of 3 Hurt in Mishap Unchanged

PROFITS CHARGED IN SCRAP RUBBER DRIVE

Four Firms Reported in Line for Big Payments.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 13—Elliot E. Simpson, an independent rubber dealer who is counsel for a house subcommittee investigating the rubber situation, charges that "four large scrap rubber firms have reaped enormous profits from the country's scrap rubber drive."

Simpson, in a statement released yesterday, said:

"The four companies which have been appointed as the sole rubber reserve 'agents' are H. Muehlstein and Co. Inc., A. Schulman, Inc., Nat E. Berzen, Inc., and the Lowenthal Co. All four have branches extending from coast to coast, and all four are due to obtain tremendous profits from this deal."

Simpson said the four companies "are being granted 'commissions' of $1.50 on every ton of scrap rubber which is collected for the rubber reserve, whether or not they were instrumental in collecting the scrap."

CHINESE RECAPTURE ISLAND FROM JAPS

End Threat To Principal Port Held by Chiang.

By The Associated Press

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's high command declared today that the Chinese had recaptured Futuo island, just off the Fukien province coast from Foochow, smashing the newest Japanese threat to one of the biggest ports still in Chinese hands.

The Japanese seized the island last Thursday but were driven off Saturday, a Chinese communique announced. It said fighting still was in progress northwest of Wenchow, in Chekiang province the second of the two big remaining Chinese ports. The Japanese claimed yesterday that they had occupied Wenchow.

Fighting continued inland in Kiangsi province where the Chinese said the Japanese were rushing up reinforcements in an effort to save 30,000 of their troops hemmed in by the Chinese between the Kan and Fu rivers.

STOCK LOSERS IN MAJORITY

Market Absorbs More Profit Taking on Last Week's Sharp Rally.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 13 — The stock market absorbed more profit taking on last week's sharp rally without a great deal of trouble although come-back tendencies were feeble in most departments.

Losers were in the majority. Minus marks ranged from fractions to around a point at the worst. Offerings were small, however, and declines were reduced here and there, with scattered modest advances appearing.

Some trimming of commitments was blamed on the foggy Russian war news and the revival of tax doubts at home. Inflation thinking waned considerably but there still was enough of it to serve as an anti-liquidating argument.

Among early share stumblers were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda and Douglas Aircraft. Several of these ultimately improved. Resistance was shown by U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Boeing and Du Pont.

Financial quarters found last-minute changes made in the revenue measure by the house ways and means committee far from cheering. If the latest proposals were adopted, analysts expressed the opinion it would be necessary to revise downward current earnings estimates for numerous corporations.

CLEVELAND PATROL PASSES MANEUVERS

200 CAP Members Participate in Event at Vermilion.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 13—Cleveland civil air patrol has passed its first all-squadron maneuvers with flying colors.

Approximately 200 members with 35 planes and 35 maintenance and personnel automobiles held exercises yesterday at the Vermilion emergency landing field, six miles southwest of Vermilion.

The planes arrived over the field in formations of threes, and peeled off to land "like veterans," according to Wing Commander George Stone of Columbus.

During bombing practice Observer Arthur R. Leuten and Pilot Earl M. Gibbs of squadron 4 dropped one of their one-pound sacks of flour in the center of a 50-foot circle from a height of 50 feet.

The spot landing contest, in which pilots made precision landings in the bombing circle, resulted in a tie between Mrs. Arlene Davis of squadron 1 and Jack Bassichis of squadron 4, who hit identical spots.

WADESBORO, N. C., July 13—The U. S. army's first wartime maneuvers got underway in the Carolinas today with an admonition by the director that "this may be the last dress rehearsal before the shooting for keeps starts for many of you.

"No part of warfare will be omitted in the activity which will include two new phases—air-ground and the final clean-up action," said Maneuver Director Maj. Gen. E. J. Dawley.

TRADING LISTLESS IN WHEAT MARKET

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 13 — Trading in the wheat pit was a listless affair today as interest was focused upon legislative developments in Washington for a cue to the next market move.

Hedge selling at the start forced quotations down about ½ cent, but the failure of any pronounced weakness to develop resulted in covering by shorts and the market experienced a mild rally.

Here's The Net Result of Your Salvage Efforts

By BILL BONI
Wide World Military Editor

NEW YORK, July 11—"Salvage," say the posters, "can help win the war. Contribute now."

So you dig.

You dig up a discarded pair of overshoes from the back of the hall closet; save faithfully all your toothpaste tubes, and clean and flatten tin cans; make stacks of paper bags, newspapers, shirt cardboards; pitch a leaky saucepan on to the country's growing salvage heap.

But then what?

What happens to all this stuff? What does that worn out pair of overshoes represent, when converted into military supplies? How many toothpaste tubes do you have to save to make an impression? If you collect 100 pounds of paper a month, how many shells will that pack? Is that saucepan going to help slap a Jap, and how?

Here's how:

Rubber—Fifty feet of garden hose (even very cracked garden hose) will make raincoats for four soldiers, or a life raft for the navy. Enough rubber can be reclaimed from a single hot water bottle to make two yards of hospital sheeting. Two old inner tubes equal three heavy gas masks.

The giant earthmovers which help build air bases and army camps run on tires that weigh 3,650 pounds. That's why, for each one, 260 automobile tires are not on the civilian market.

One old tire represents enough rubber to make boots for 18 parachute troopers, while 150 would fit out a flying fortress. At least 50 parts of a medium bomber (one of the B-25's that raided Tokyo, say) need the rubber that would go into 1,000 pair of galoshes. The 180 tons of rubber we used to cut up into pencil erasers is ample for 200,000 gas masks.

And the 30,000,000 rubber bands this country used to produce a year ate up enough crude rubber to put bulletproof gasoline tanks into 300 heavy bombers and also make treads, engine mounts, shock-absorbing cushions and machinegun insulation for 300 tanks.

Scrap Iron and Steel—That old flat iron will yield enough steel for two helmets or 30 hand grenades. Your garbage pail? One thousand .30-caliber cartridges (and for 111 garbage pails, read one 75 mm. Howitzer). That old set of golf clubs rusting down in the cellar for two years represents a .30 caliber machine-gun. If you and nine neighbors each could round up an old kitchen stove, you'd have sufficient steel to furnish the army with a scout car.

You can't buy a new automobile? Sure you can't—steel for 28 heavy machineguns goes into a single one of them. And in case your refrigerator is getting balky, just remember that if we still were going along with peacetime production of refrigerators, we'd have to get along with 4,000 fewer medium tanks this year.

Tin—There's enough in 70 toothpaste tubes for the radiator of an army truck. If your family saves the 18 tin cans they ordinarily would throw away in the space of two weeks, you'll save a portable flame-thrower. If you do it for a month, you've got the bushings for three machine-guns.

Phonograph Records—There's shellac enough in one 12-inch record to waterproof the primers on 50,000 .30-caliber cartridges, or to make one military signal flare which some day may direct our artillery to an enemy-blasting barrage.

Waste Paper—That 100-pound stack you put outside the door this morning will be turned into containers for eighty 75-mm. shells or 35 containers for shipping tinned foods to the army, navy or marines overseas. If you save 20 of those stacks, you'll have contributed to the production of 47,000 boxes for .30-caliber ammunition, or 71,000 dust covers for airplane engines, or 36,000 targets to sharpen our soldiers' aim.

Odds and Ends—One old battery out of your car will yield the lead for three 3-inch anti-aircraft guns. There's as much copper in a single six-foot electric cord as there is in 100 37-mm. anti-aircraft shells.

A pursuit plane uses up aluminum equivalent to that in 7,700 pots and pans, while one of those giant, jarring juke-boxes contains enough brass for 750 cartridge cases, enough steel for five light machine-guns, and 42 pounds of plastics that would do more good in the windows and control panels of army and navy planes.

Four old sheets contain linen to help make the wings, fuselage and ailerons of a military training plane. The silk for more than 100 pairs of silk stockings is needed to turn out just one parachute.

If the new "victory razors" are to be made of zinc and plastics, it's because in 1941 the safety razor industry used 1,062,000 pounds of brass—which would have made 31,578,000 .30-caliber cartridges, or 3,947,000 cartridge clips for the garand rifle.

Next time you're ready to discard something, pick your direction. If you throw it right you may hit a Nazi square in the face.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D

Work for First Aiders

NOBODY KNOWS how much the various groups of civilian defense workers who are being trained in first aid work will have to do during the present emergency. We hope not very much but from conversations that I hear I feel like telling all the civilian groups the old story of the young doctor who was being given his final blessing, before going into practice, by his old medical sponsor. The young man had just about left the room when the old gentleman called him back and said, "Charlie, one thing more. Remember, don't do too much."

I heard of an elderly lady who was shopping with her daughter and came out of a store and simply slipped and fell on the pavement. She was immediately surrounded by a group of first aiders fresh from their class, all of whom shouted, "Don't touch her! Don't touch her! Don't pick her up. Don't lift her head." The poor old lady kept saying, "Give me a hand and let me get up," but the bevy of first aiders surrounded her until finally her daughter came along and raised her to her feet. There was nothing the matter with her and all she needed was a friendly hand.

Another first aider said in answer to a question: "In case of asphyxia, remove obstructions from the mouth, such as the tongue." "In case of fire, put it out." "In case of a bleeding head wound, put a tourniquet around the neck."

I am inclined to believe that the most frequent wound that will occur in civilian practice during the emergency will be burns, and I am also inclined to believe that most burns should be left to professional first aid teams. Certainly the best thing to do for a person with a burn of any extent is to wrap him in a blanket and convey him as gently as possible to a hospital for emergency treatment.

A burn is two or three kinds of a liability. In the first place, it is an open wound that may become infected. Most burns are contaminated because they are exposed to the air, to people hovering over them, allowing bacteria from the uncovered nose and throat to fall upon them, and not infrequently they are grossly infected with home remedies that are supposed to be antiseptic in nature.

Prevention of infection is probably the most important single factor in the treatment of burns. For that reason cover the patient up with even a reasonably clean blanket or sheet and take him to a hospital where a surgical team in mask, gown and rubber gloves can handle the wound.

For a long time the standard treatment for burns was to cover them with sterile oil or sterile grease. Lately I understand in some places this treatment has been criticized. Yet I heard one of the most prominent surgeons in Boston who has had a large experience with burns say in a talk that he believed he would rather have his burn covered with sterile vaseline or sterile grease than anything he knew of. He preferred a grease dressing to the use of tannic acid and the various sulfa drugs. Therefore, the best treatment for a small burn is simply to cover it with a sterile piece of gauze until a surgeon is available.

In large burns the second liability which occurs is the loss of blood plasma from the open wound. This causes diminished blood volume, decreased heart output, stagnation of the circulation and the whole picture of what is called thermal shock. This can be treated by a blood or plasma transfusion.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

BUT I FOUND that Dicky's prediction was not to be fulfilled, for I slept very little that night. During those troubled catnaps, in my dreams as in my imagination when awake, I followed Katharine in her weary search.

It was really an all-night vigil for me too. When at last I heard her key in the lock I sat up, thrust my feet into my slippers, put on a negligee and went into the living room.

I had expected sorrowful disappointment, but I was not prepared for her intense, tragic grief. Katharine lay face downward on the bed, her fingers clenching the pillows.

"Katharine dear," I said, "I am here. What can I do for you?"

She turned to me a ravaged face which had aged ten years since she had left us.

"I have failed Jack, Madge," she said. "I can find no trace of him."

"Where have you been hunting?" I asked.

"Where haven't I been hunting?" she countered. "As you know, I had a theory that, while masquerading in his new identity, he had fallen unconscious after he sent that letter to me, and had been taken to some hospital.

"But I have made the rounds of all the hospitals. I have the entree, you know, and I was permitted to look at every patient in the wards. I was sure he's not be in a private room as he couldn't have ordered one himself. And not one face did I see even remotely resembling his."

Roused by Madge

"What about the private hospitals?" I asked.

She started and looked at me with alert attention.

"What do you mean?" she queried.

"It's something significant, I know," she went on. "I haven't heard your nuances of voice all these years for nothing. Please don't keep me in suspense. Tell me at once."

I realized that this nervous insistence was most unlike Katharine, and it told me as nothing else could how deeply her suspense about her husband was eating into her soul.

And once more I wondered if abiding love for Jack was at the bottom of her deep emotion, or if rather her sense of duty, of loyalty, of responsibility for him was battling subconsciously with a feeling for another man which she would not admit even to herself.

May Have Been Trailed

"I mean simply this," I said. "We have to face the possibility that some one might have been near him who did not wish him to go to any hospital where you could find him.

"It might have been somebody on his trail who knew or surmised what was in the note Jack sent you, and who had him taken to some small private hospital or nursing home where you never would think of looking."

"It doesn't seem a very tenable theory to me," she said, "for I don't share your belief that the letter is a forgery.

"However," she finished, "anything is worth trying. And as soon as your father can provide me with another guard—I think I've worn Adams out—I'll start out and tour the private hospitals."
